After Hours	194

When we entered St. Agnes we soon found that we had more than passed through brick gates. We entered a place with a special atmosphere — informal, open, and honest, filled with fun places and faces, hard work and play, and high spirits. We have seen many changes to the face of our place that have boosted respect for and pride in our school.

But wait — let us preserve what we sensed as we passed through our campus — the sisterly enthusiasm we each felt, the natural beauty in our small independent campus, and the dedication of the faculty — all that helped to make St. Agnes a very special place for those who were a part of it in 1979!

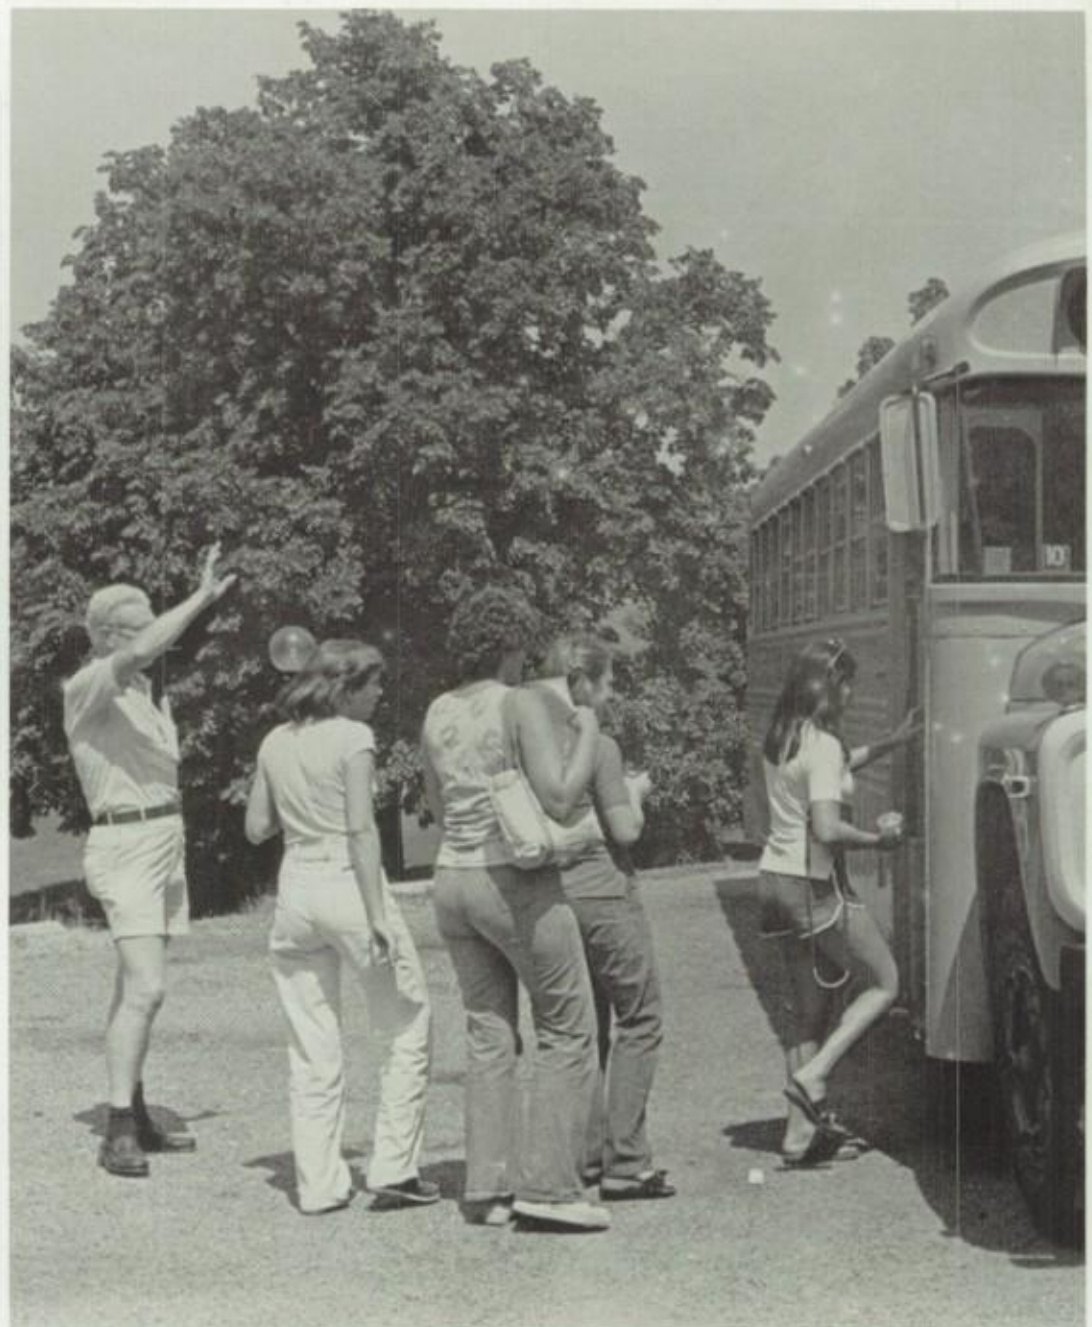

For mem'ry has painted this perfect
day

With colors that never fade,
And we find at the end of a perfect
day

The soul of a friend we've made.

— Carrie Jacobs Bond

At the Big-Little Sister dinner, the new upperschoolers' faces register the growing awareness of summer's end and school's assault on their freedom.

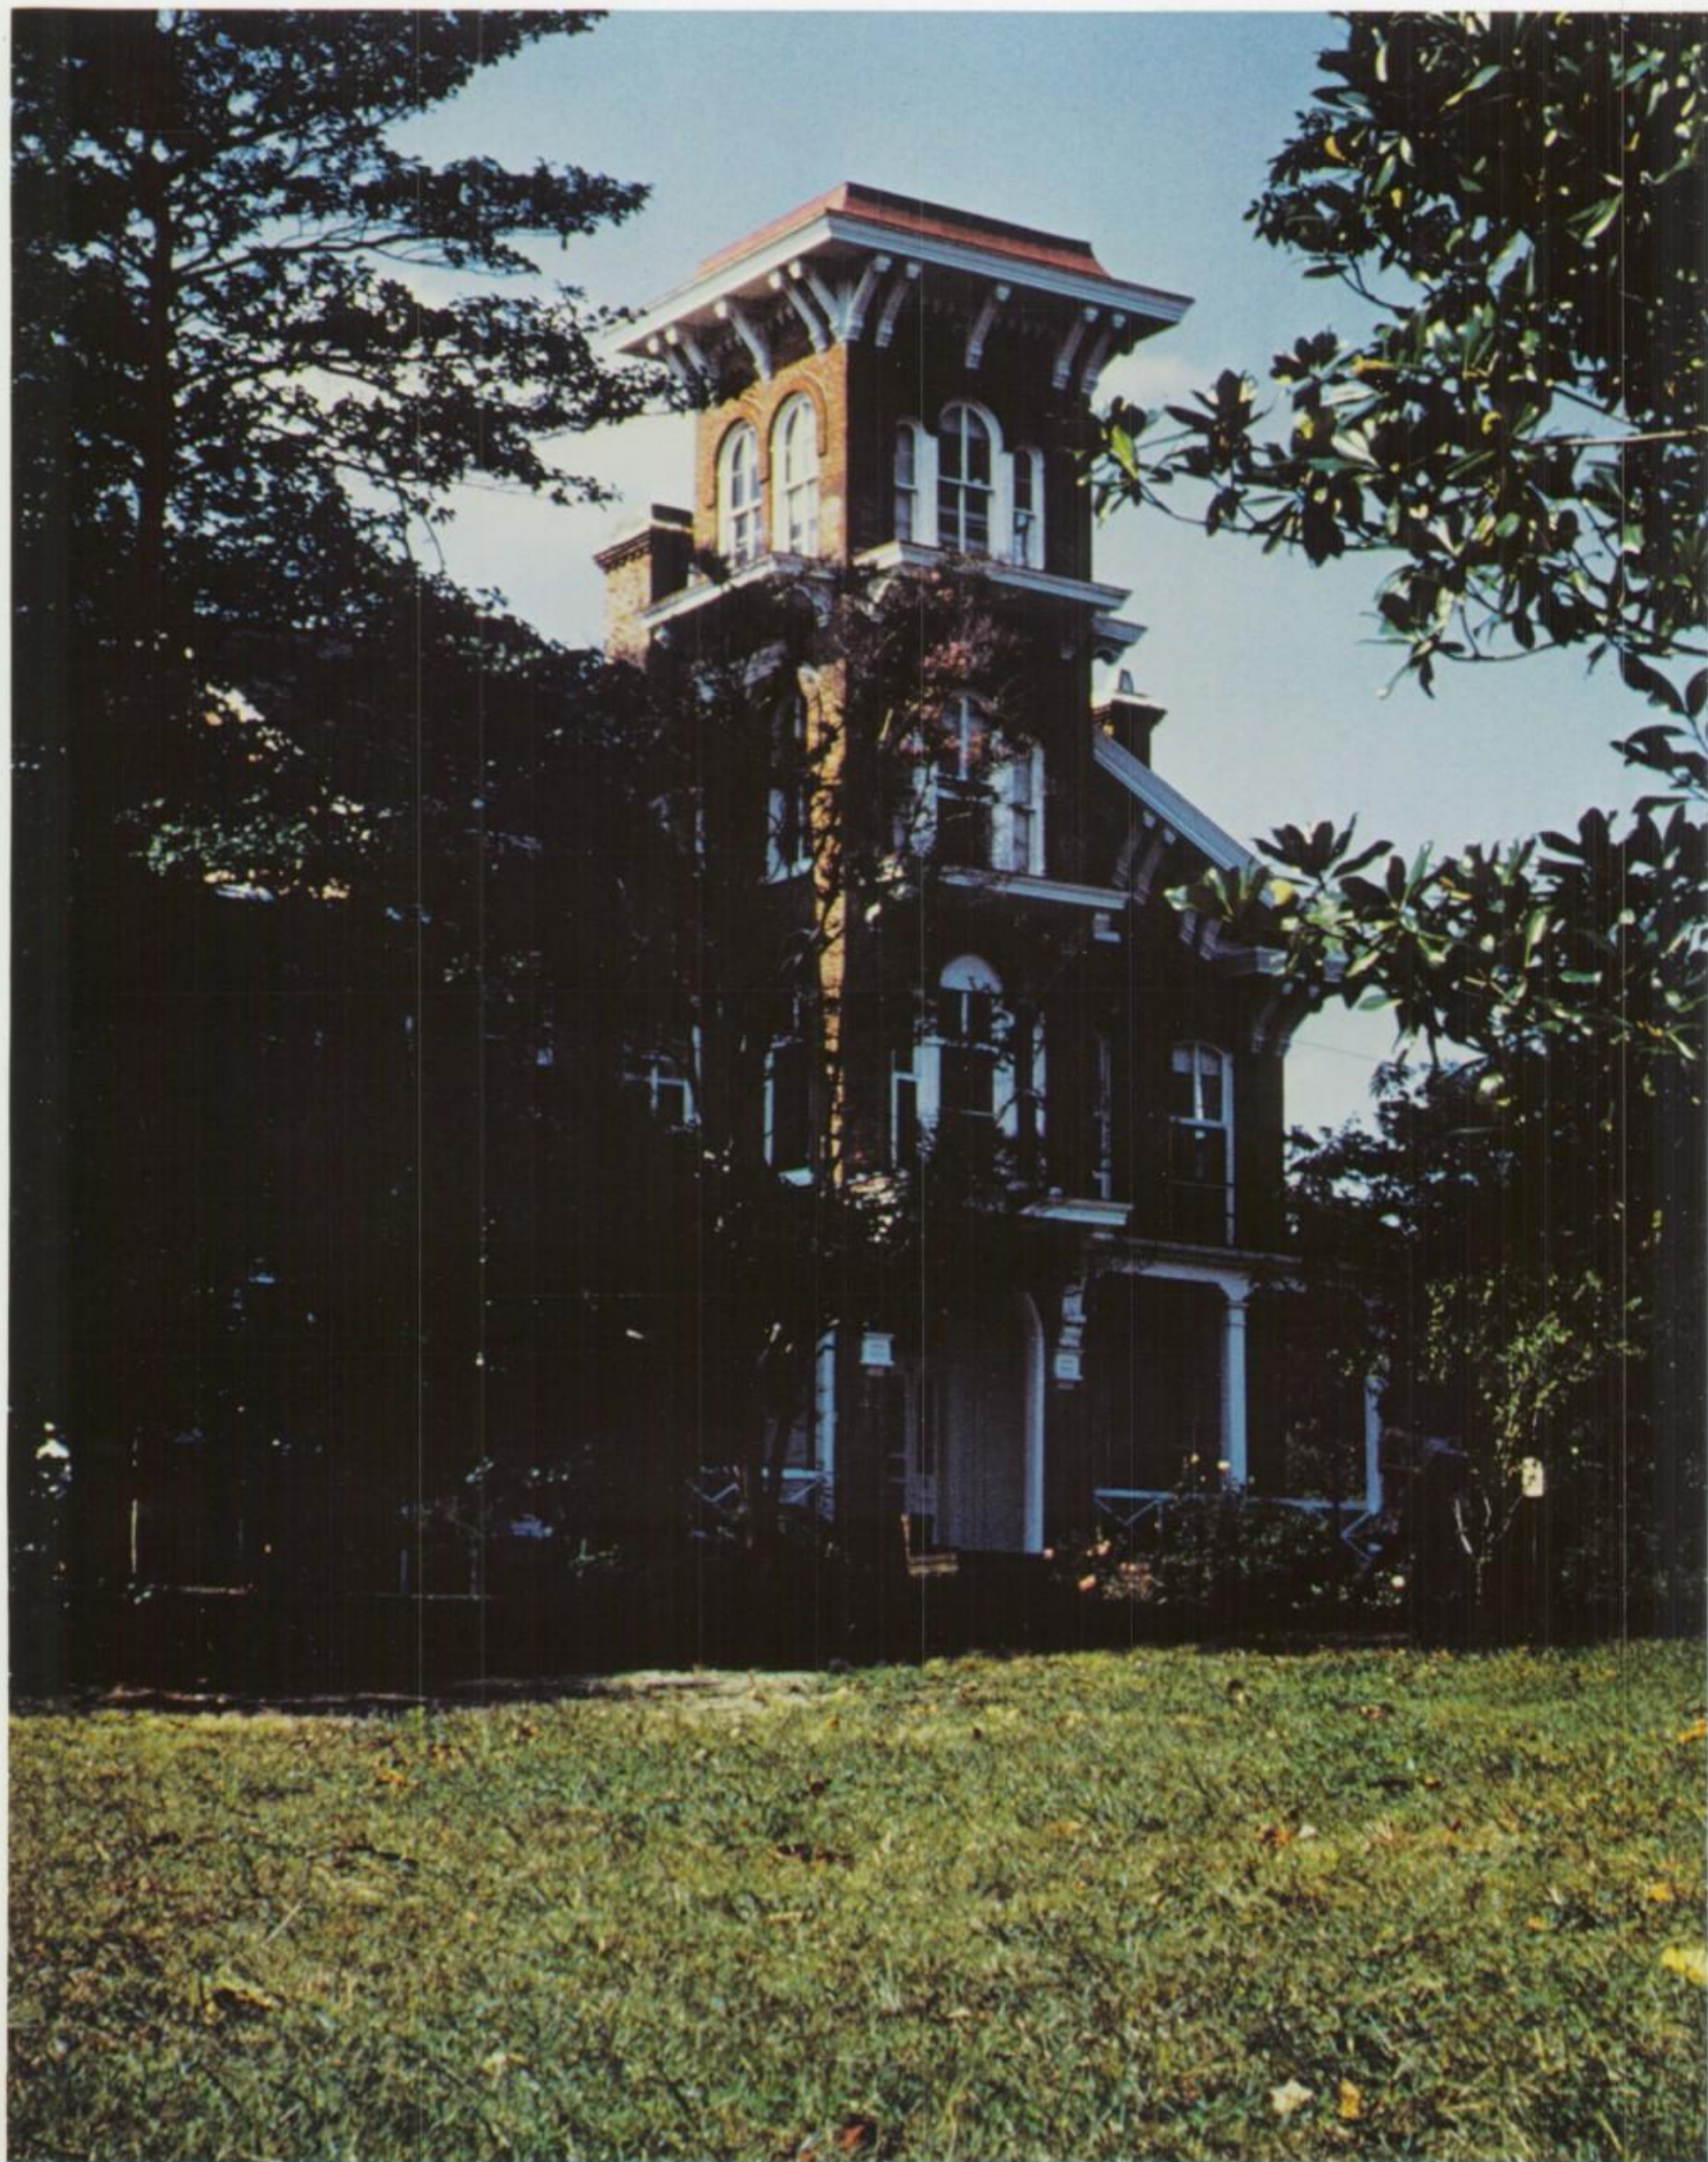

Counselor Margaret Stender lends a guiding hand to the SAS summer campers.

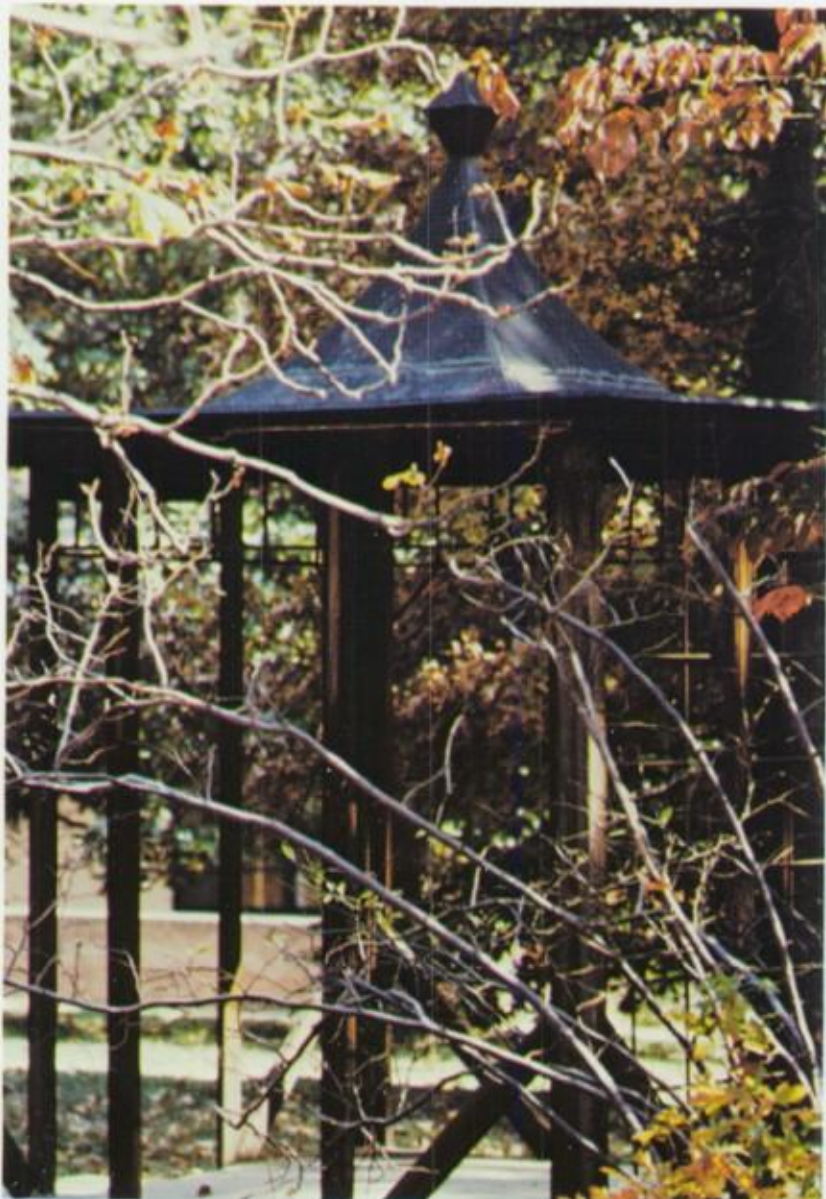

Saints Summer

Activity at St. Agnes continued with summer vacation. Many students began new jobs or headed for their favorite recreation spots. Some even spent vacation at school, serving as counselors for the SAS summer camp. SAS and SSS cheerleaders practiced old cheers and invented new ones at their camp in Frederick, Md.

Leaders of school organizations and their sponsors started planning for the new year on an overnight trip, held August 28-29, at Roslyn, the traditional conference spot near Richmond, Va. At the party given by faculty sponsors, the Senior representatives provided amusement with a re-creation of "Animal House." Even Head Lambs' Talers got into the summer act by attending a year-book seminar in Winston-Salem, N.C.

SCA and Guild brought the pre-school activities to an end with the Big and Little Sister dinner.

I have found that sitting in a place where you have never sat before can be inspiring.

— Dodie Smith

'Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no
place like home;
A charm from the skies seems to hallow us there,
Which sought through the world is ne'er met with elsewhere.

— John Howard Payne

Saint's Hannon Jacob breaks through the Cardinal's "holey" defense.

The goal of every Cardinal is to be a Saint

The Saint Stephen's Saints retaining their undefeated record, were victorious over the B.I. Cardinals in the traditional Homecoming Game held October 14. Jim Fulcher, the kicker, Chris Meloni, quarterback, and Hannon Jacobs, running back, all contributed much towards the exciting victory. After helping to cheer on the Saints as they defeated the struggling Cardinals, the SSS and SAS alumni met at a reception following the game to celebrate the victory.

The outcome of the game provided a favorable atmosphere for the Homecoming dance. The highpoint of the evening came with the introduction of the Homecoming Queen, Lacy Hendrickson, by Chris Maloni.

While Galaxy takes a break, Sextette boogies down to the sound of the "Bugle Boy."

Finishing their preview lap, the windblown Homecoming Court comes in in good form.

Wildly cheering the Saints on to another touchdown, alumni, parents, and supporters fill the stands for the SSS Homecoming game.

A Custom Cheerfully Carried Out

After a false alarm the week before, the sly Sophomores raided the Freshman homeroom on the sunny morning of Friday, October 20, and outfitted the unsuspecting Frosh in laughable and inventive costumes as characters from fairytales, movies and "Saturday Night Live." During lunch both classes participated in an action-packed game of Duck-duck Goose on the hockey field, and afterwards everyone attacked sandwiches, ice cream, and cookies. Although it caused a small amount of embarrassment for victims, this Freshman-Sophomore Day will be remembered with smiles for the fun, food, and friendship it provided.

Betty Smith says, "Cheryl Tieg's eat your heart out!"

Egged on by her schoolmates, not-so-Lucky Ducky Anne Lyons tries to goose someone.

The Leipheimer Family

Dear Seniors,

For me, your graduation from St. Agnes is a powerful reminder that time does pass very swiftly. Suddenly, or so it seems, the girls I knew as "The Juniors" are about to become alumnae! Of course I recognize, as you do, that this is the way of life: time brings change, and with it fresh challenges and new opportunities for growth and discovery.

I commend you, as a class, for proving that there is strength in diversity. Your ranks include individuals with decidedly varied attitudes and points of view, but you have worked together — and have achieved very successful resolutions — on several complex, potentially sensitive issues; and in our own unobtrusive but steady way, you have helped to lead the school through a period of transition and change.

On behalf of the faculty, I send you congratulations on your accomplishments, gratitude for your contributions to your school, and affectionate good wishes for the future.

Sincerely,
Robert Leipheimer

The strange assortment of Kindergarteners parades through the halls, hoping to scare some Upperschoolers.

The Kindergarten has had a fantastic year on field trips. We have gone to see the giant pandas and the white tigers at the National Zoo. We have gone by bus and the Metro to see the Christmas windows at the downtown Woodies, the National Christmas tree, and the National Collection of Fine Arts. Not only did we sample the delicious honey at the Arlington Nature Center, but we helped remove the honey from its comb. The Swiss goat bell, the "red shed," and the "black bump" are all memorable things from this year.

This fall, the first grade was busy reading and handling manipulative materials for our work in numbers. For fun, we printed with many types of things: We tried different vegetables, sponges, leaf rubbings, and some beautiful leaf printings. For Christmas we made magnolia cones in plaster with sequins and "snow" on them to make Fairyland Christmas trees. Our other activities include cooking which is fun. We measure for making fudge, bread, vegetable soup. Then, we measure ourselves with our new metric scale. We are learning while having fun in the first grade.

In the second grade we do fun things. We have art, gym, recess, spelling, math tests, reading, and library. In reading we do lots of work that is fun. In math we may have hard problems, but we get through them! Recess is a time to stretch and run, skip and play. This year we did a special state report. Learning to write in cursive is one of our hardest problems, but the second grade is very, very nice.

The fifth grade has done many exciting things! We started off by studying the Sumerians in Social Studies, and rocks in Science. We went to Robert E. Lee's boyhood home, the Alexandria Symphony, and Madame Lasowski's house where we saw the French Christmas crèche. We did experiments on mealworms; one girl's worm turned into a beetle. We have had fun.

We are all looking forward to studying new things in Science. We are going to hatch chicken eggs; later on, we are going to buy a mother frog and have tadpoles; and we are going to study the human body. We think fifth grade has been our favorite year in school.

The sixth grade is divided into two homerooms, Miss Barksdale's and Miss Hottel's. Both classes have been involved in a variety of activities. We began the year with much homework and hockey practice. We have been on three trips: to the National Art Gallery, the National Zoo, and another part of the Art Gallery. Mrs. Barber has led the most interesting discussions on relevant topics that affect our lives. We have really enjoyed the sixth grade.

This year was much different and perhaps better than last year. Seventh graders chose from among three languages: French, Latin and Spanish.

For Grandparents' Day, we had a talent contest instead of doing scenes from our musical. We also had another talent contest for the Spring Festival. The show was a great success because everybody got into the act.

We all liked the new teachers, Mrs. Lee, Seventh, and Miss Hottel, Sixth, but we couldn't have made it without Mrs. Catron and Miss Barksdale. We all want to get to the Upper School next year even though we will miss all our former teachers and Mrs. Barber.

Variety is the word to describe the Class of '83. For them, the eighth grade was a time to revel in new-found freedom as well as a time to be sequestered in proctored study halls. While changing classrooms was not new to them, using lockers was, and while the schoolwork was not too difficult, exams were not their favorite thing to study for.

The class held bake sales to raise money for the treasury and had a Christmas party to spend it. They also had a unique phantom party and the money saved was contributed to Children's Hospital.

The Class of '83 did not let all this goodnaturedness go to their heads too often and their natural boisterousness bubbled up on many occasions.

F is for their friendship;
 R is for their rowdiness;
 E is for their effort to achieve;
 S is for their Aggie spirit;
 H is for their hair-raising antics;
 M is for their multitude;
 E is for their eagerness to get involved;
 N is for their never-ending love for St. Agnes;
 Put it all together and there's the Freshman class!

Lyla Potts and Peggy Roth put their best faces forward.

Although the tenth grade had been the hardest yet for the Class of '81, they had a great time. As a result of all their struggles, they developed a sense of group effort and unity; they grew to feel like a class as well as a group of individuals. Throughout the year they had to contend with biology lab papers, and geometric proofs; but there was also time for class parties, ski trips to Seven Springs, outbursts of immaturity in the hallways, and the turning of the tacky Sophomore rings.

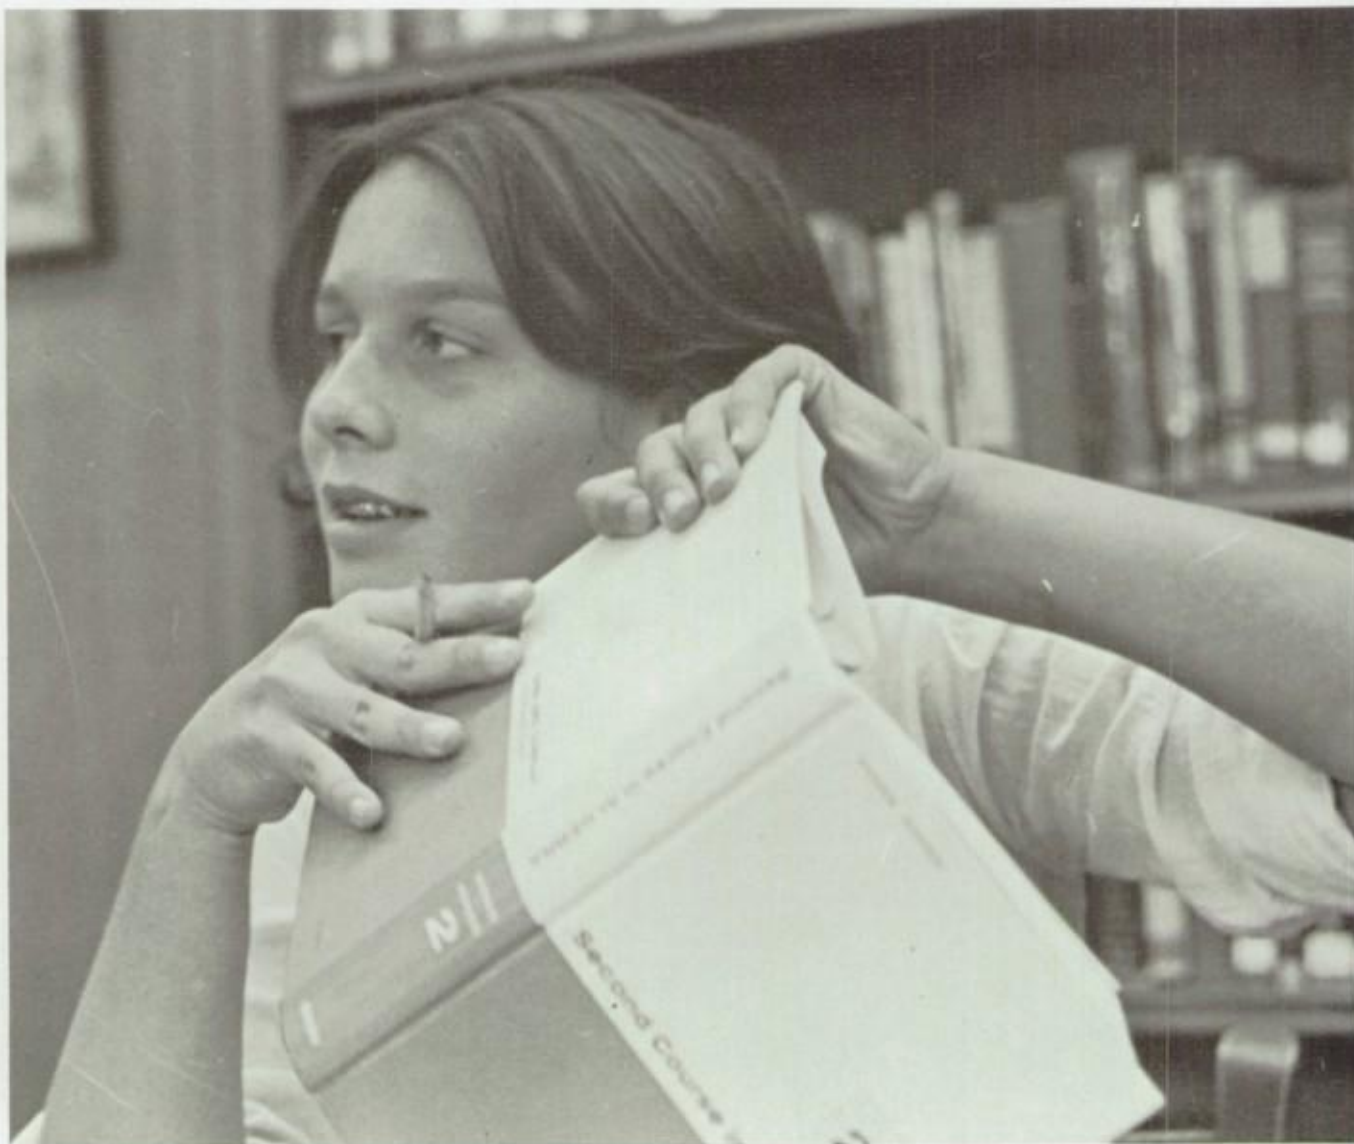

With the help of their class advisors, Mrs. Fox and Mr. Nemetz, the Sophomores organized such annual events as Freshman — Sophomore Day, the Freshman — Sophomore Dance, and various fund raisers. As they look back on their Sophomore year, the Class of '81 will remember it as one filled with learning, changing, and growing up. They now look forward to next year when, as Juniors, they will be one year closer to graduation.

"How would you like an Algebra book in your face?" asks Carolyn Pleasants.

The fun-loving Junior class was full of innovative spirit and endless pep during the year 78-79. Junior-Senior Day offered the first opportunity to show its enthusiasm. The class picked up second prize in Fun-Night with its clever skit "Chomp." Early one Saturday morning, they gave up their precious sleep to paint their homeroom bright

Trying to create warm holiday feelings, the Juniors organized a Christmas luncheon and invited the faculty.

On weekends, Juniors were frequently spotted in Georgetown and Old Town either celebrating over finished term papers, new class rings, or just having a good time.

Dedication

Sherley Osgood Keith

With compassion, kindness and warmth, Sherley Osgood Keith has been a teacher, friend and advisor. Through her interaction with students and as a teacher of English, she has given her all. Mostly we wish to commend her for her first year as Senior Class advisor and the personal interest, late night worries and firm guidance she has given to the class of 1979. We will never forget her joyous laugh, her love of parties and her early morning coffee cup always in hand.

We, the Senior Class, proudly dedicate this LIV Volume of the Lambs' Tale to Sherley Osgood Keith.

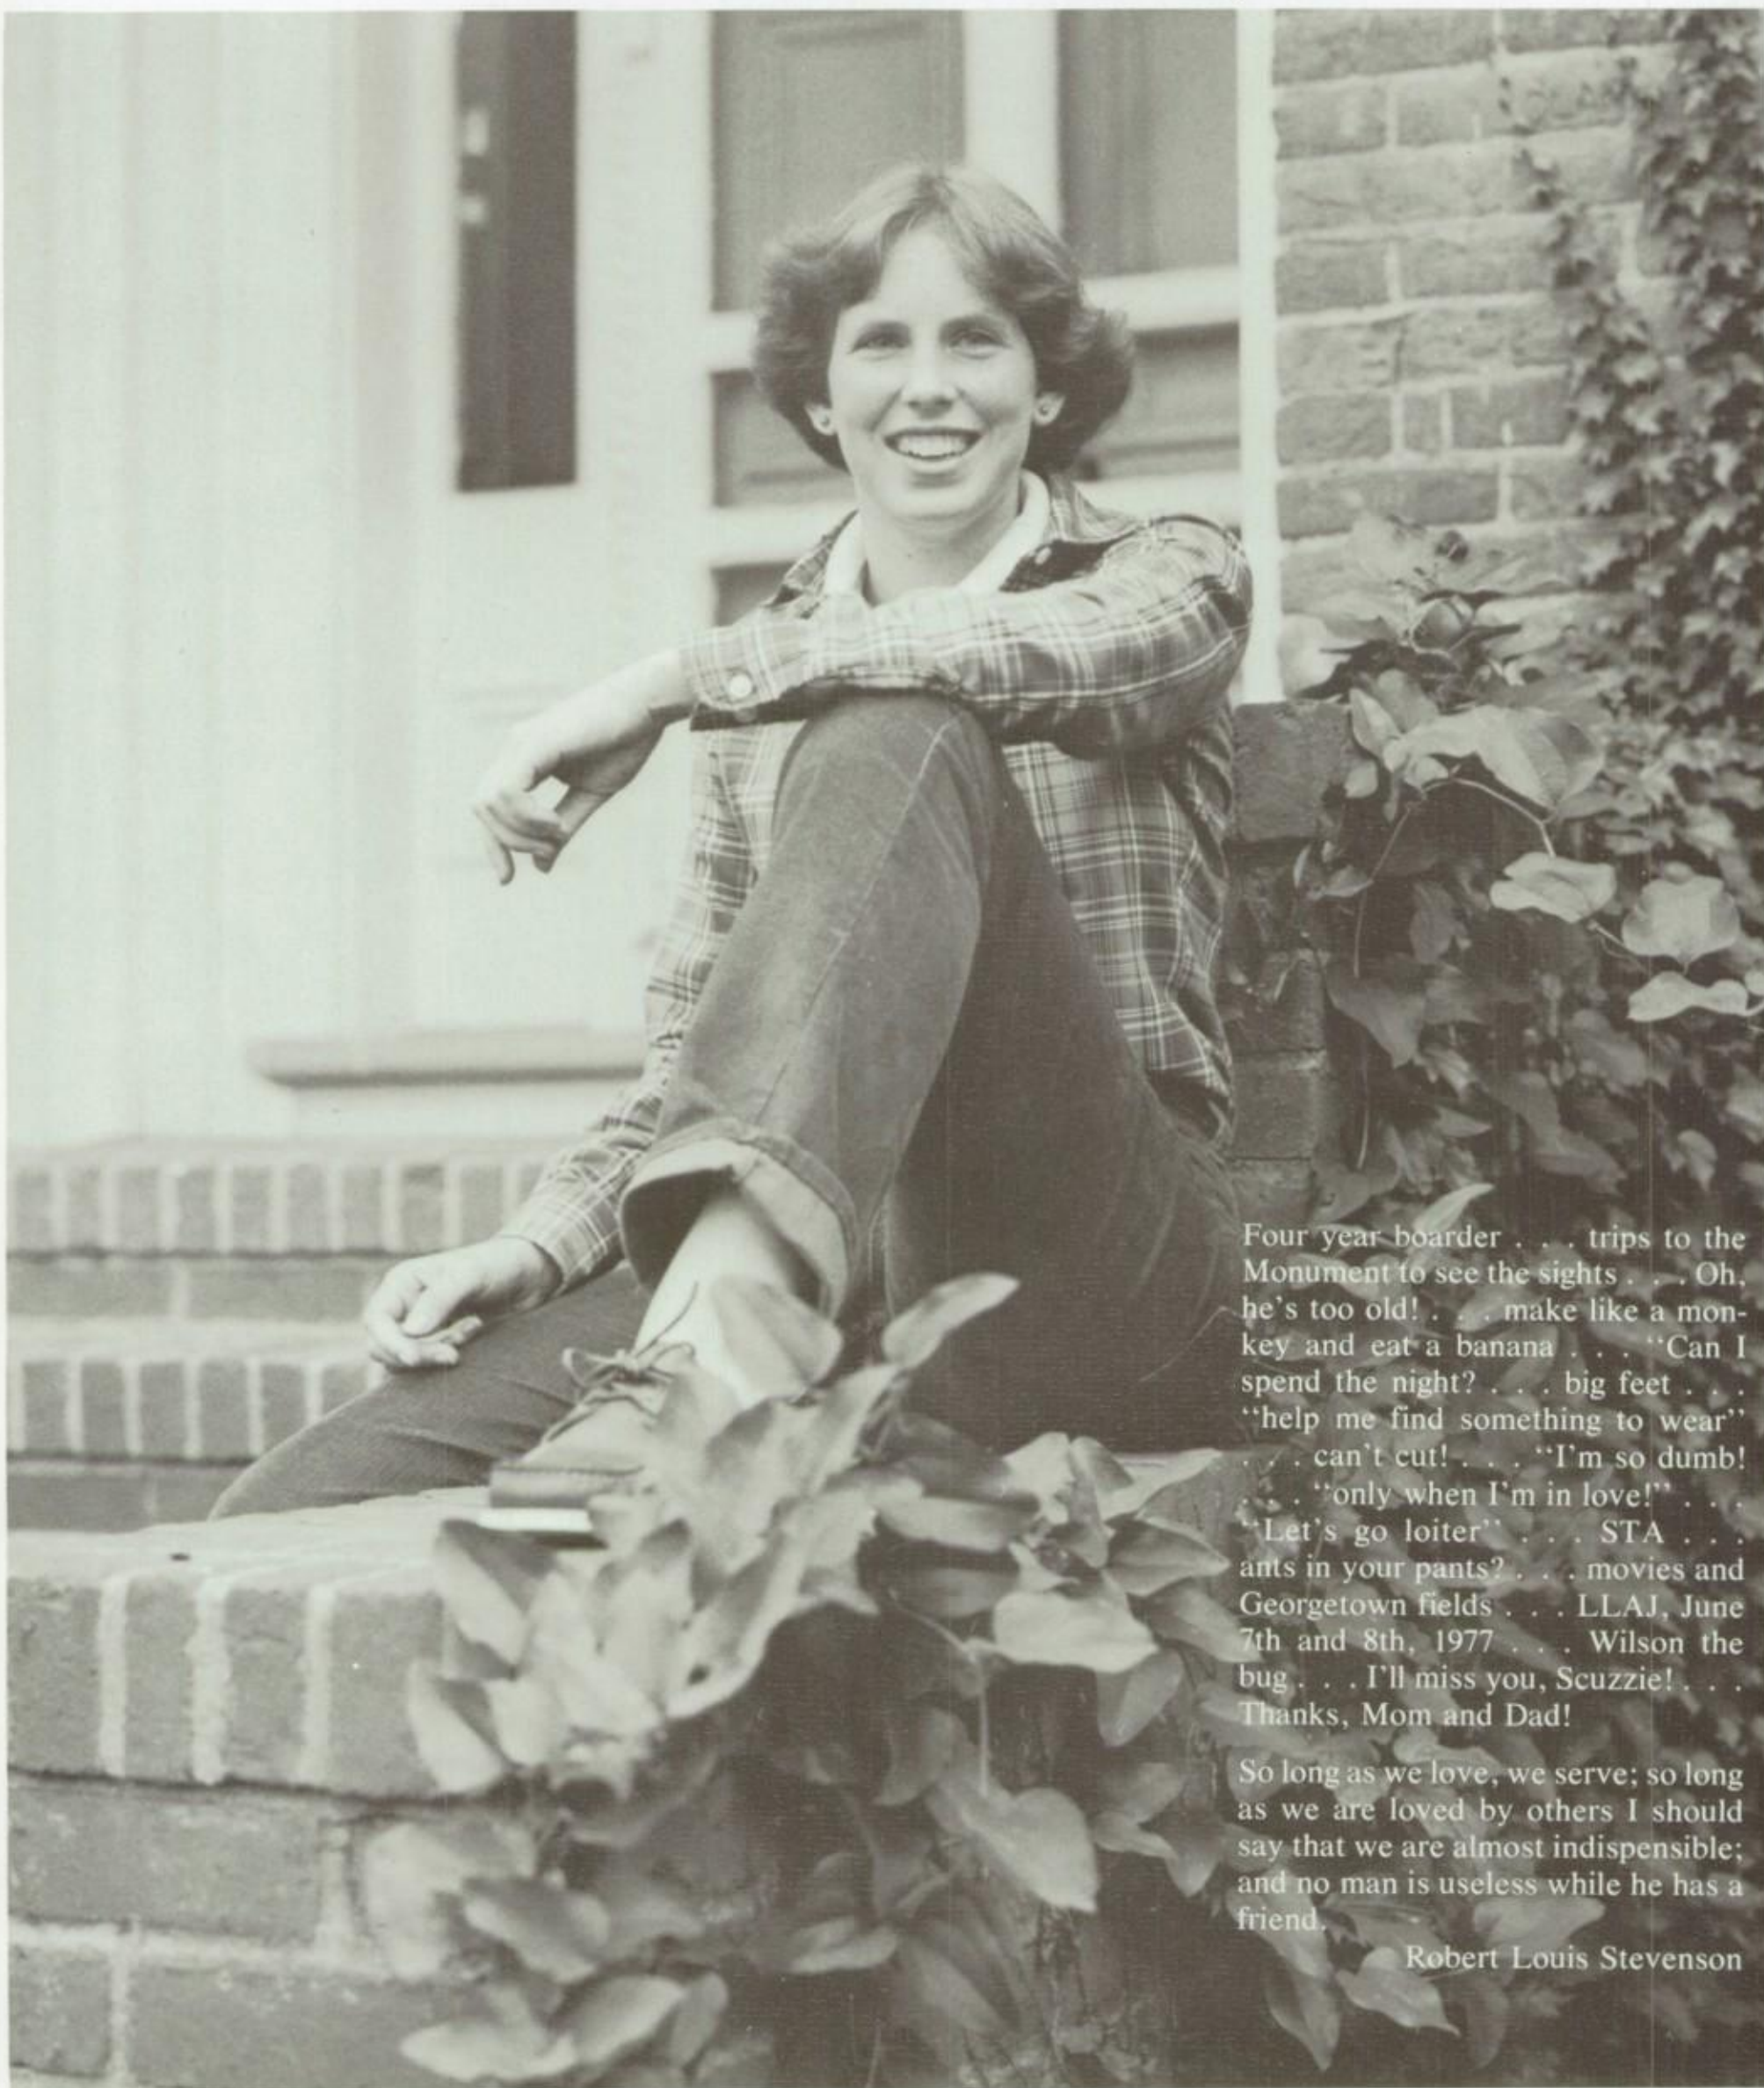

Appreciation

Daingerfield Lewis Ashton

When one considers the many years of dedicated service that Daingerfield Ashton has contributed to St. Agnes, one realizes that his dedication is indispensable. Through his availability and willingness to help when help is needed, he shows his devotion for the community and the individuals that comprise this community. For his care and concern that he has so generously given to the school, we thank him.

A close-up photograph of a textured surface, possibly a book cover or endpaper. The image shows a repeating pattern of stylized, interlocking geometric shapes, resembling a woven or quilted design. The pattern is rendered in a light beige or cream color against a darker, mottled background. The texture appears slightly grainy, and the lighting is even, highlighting the intricate details of the pattern.

Halloween elf Courtney Woodman leads a daring middle schooler through the haunted house during SCA's halloween party.

Judy Newman, fearless all-knowing leader of Student Council, is interrupted from her diligent lunchtime meeting preparation.

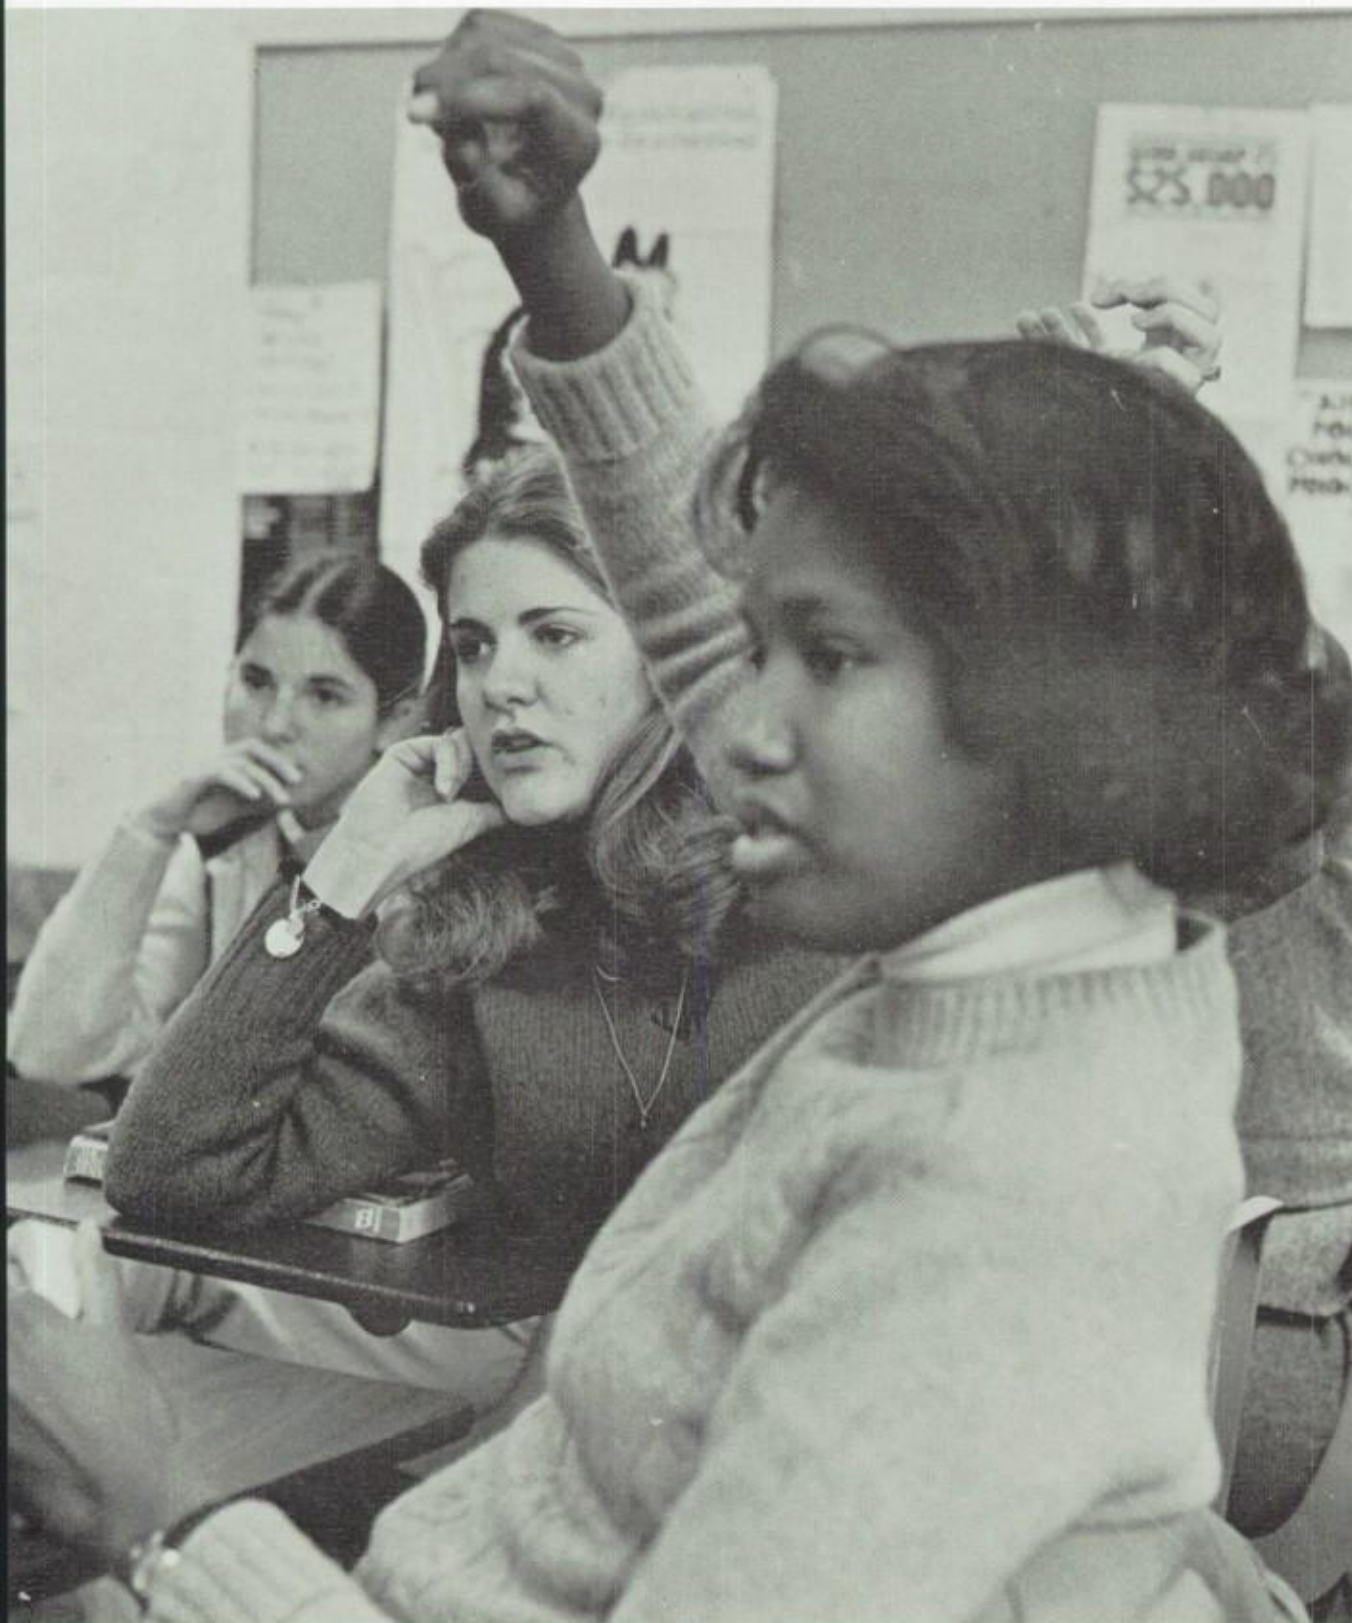

Student Council Sponsor, Miss Myers cogitates on the issues facing SCA.

SCA Student Concerned Action

Student Council set out organizing activities within the school and the community and incorporating the concerns and interests of the students into these functions. In Alexandria, one of the activities SCA carried out was a childrens Christmas party at Hopkins House. They discussed old issues and the success of the Honor Code. Student Council worked at keeping spirit high all year and helped to solve the students complaints concerning lunch-hassles, library insurrections and administrative concerns.

Moya Young eagerly waits to comment as Courtney Woodman makes her point clear.

Guild Builds

As a part of Guild, each member of the St. Agnes community may participate in a variety of activities; she can help others and at the same time, help herself. St. Agnes' service organization sponsored many events to benefit outside groups. Guild organized an entertaining Fun Night on October 27 and gave the money raised to various centers in the area. In November, Guild encouraged students and parents to participate in the Welfare Drive, donating funds to national and local charities. The Red Cross Bloodmobile, held at S.A.S. and attracting students from other schools in the area, was successfully held in early January.

Long-range programs of Guild are run and attended by students. Every week, students help at Head Start, a daycare center for underprivileged children. Animal Welfare is a continuing concern of the association; Guild encourages students to collect pet food coupons which, in turn, are donated to the local Welfare organization. Another responsibility is the school's foster child, Patty Jo, for whom Guild collects money and sends gifts. Really quite an intricate organization, Guild leads the school in reaching out in all directions.

Marilyn Sohl reads the lesson at the Christmas service.

Foreign Affairs

Movies, luncheons, dinners and parties are only a few of the activities that the language clubs provided French and Spanish students. French Club organized a French movie followed by an authentic French dinner in the B.D. for the St. Stephens French Club.

In contributing to Christmas festivities, language students held parties with native foods and decorations.

Late in January, French students secretly arranged a baby shower for Madame Fox who greatly appreciated that happy occasion.

Both Clubs were active during International Week held in early Spring. Students sold buttons, held bakesales, and participated in Chapel programs. French III students performed their version of "Madeline," the humorous story of a little French girl. Both clubs profited from this active week of foreign events.

During a Spanish Club Meeting, Lyla Potts finally gets the joke as Señor Alvarez explains.

On The Trail

Today was our second day backpacking on the Big Schloss Trail in West Virginia. After a hearty breakfast, we all set out on the trail which ran along a beautiful ridge from which we had a great view of the valley and the mountain we were on yesterday. We hiked about five miles before stopping for lunch at a huge rock formation. At the foot of this massive rock, we left our packs and grabbed our M&M's and peanut butter to carry up. On top was a perfect view, encompassing more area than we had seen all day; directly below us we could see dangling rock climbers on their way up the hard way, and our ant-sized packs at the foot. The overcast weather, however, wasn't as pleasant as that we had had when we were hiking the Appalachian Trail in Maryland on our trip in September. On that first trip of the year, there were twenty-three backpackers, the largest group we've ever had; that assortment included some who had never been before. Now that we've so many new participants, we're guaranteed support and enthusiasm for the future.

From Rags To Riches

For the U.N. Team, preparations for the model conference began in late November. Having decided to stay at the Shoreham Hotel, where the meeting was held, the members raised money by selling poinsettias and chances for tickets to the Nutcracker Ballet. In mid-December, Team Captain Heather Kenvin arranged for her teammates to lunch at the Foreign Service Club with Charles Currier of the State Department. Since resolutions were due right after Christmas vacation, several members burned the midnight oil to write them.

The conference, sponsored by Georgetown University, was held February 22-25, and schools from all over the country participated on the educational NAIMUN WVI. Lunchtime discussions, late night meetings, and behind-the-scene caucusing contributed much to the experience.

$E = mc^2$ and other Little Known Facts

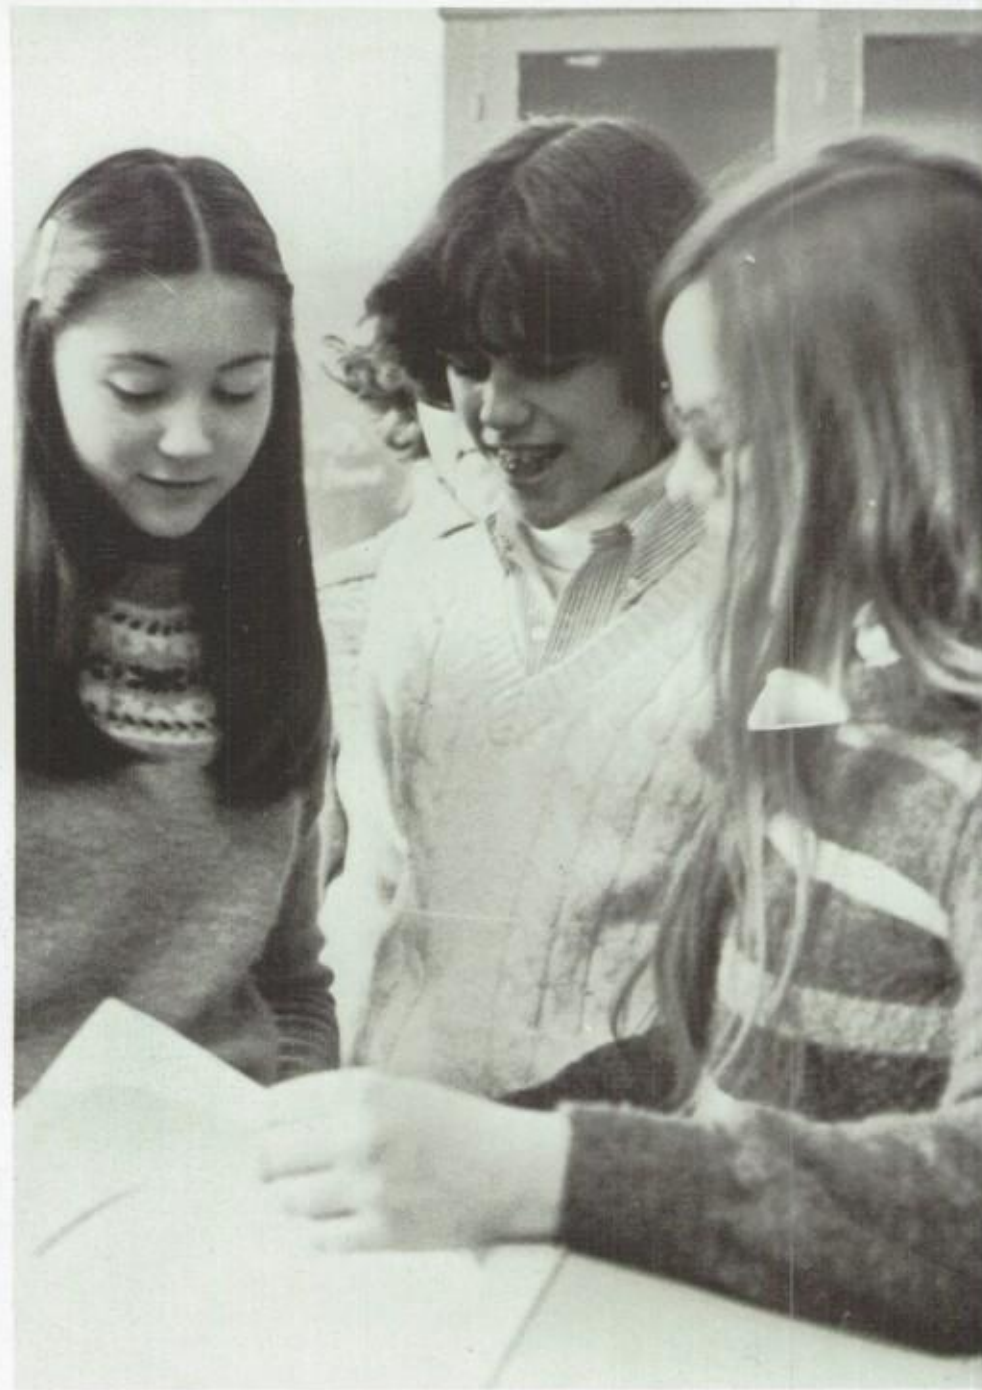

Do you know what the capital of Tunisia is, or what famous man said "Don't give up the ship?" These and other lesser-known yet interesting facts were rediscovered at many of the Monday lunchtime meetings of the "It's Academic" Team. The Team expanded to include a larger number of members, five Seniors and four Juniors, and as there were only three returning members, it was necessary to instruct the newcomers in the fine points of the game. Under the direction of faculty sponsor Mrs. Toler and captain Anne Goodwin, the team challenged the faculty to a scrimmage on January 31 in preparation for the February 3 taping. Even though the team lost to the teachers, the confrontation proved to be valuable practice as the team came through at the taping defeating the other teams by over 100 points.

Spectrum — A Rainbow of Talent

At its weekly meetings, the staff of the school's literary magazine chooses stories, poems, and art-work contributed by the future Wordsworths and Constables of St. Agnes to appear in this year's issue of Spectrum. The staff called for contributions to its often empty Spectrum box, and Mrs. Fuller, the sponsor, collected works from her English classes. The members of Spectrum held various bakesales to raise money for their publication which was presented on Class Day.

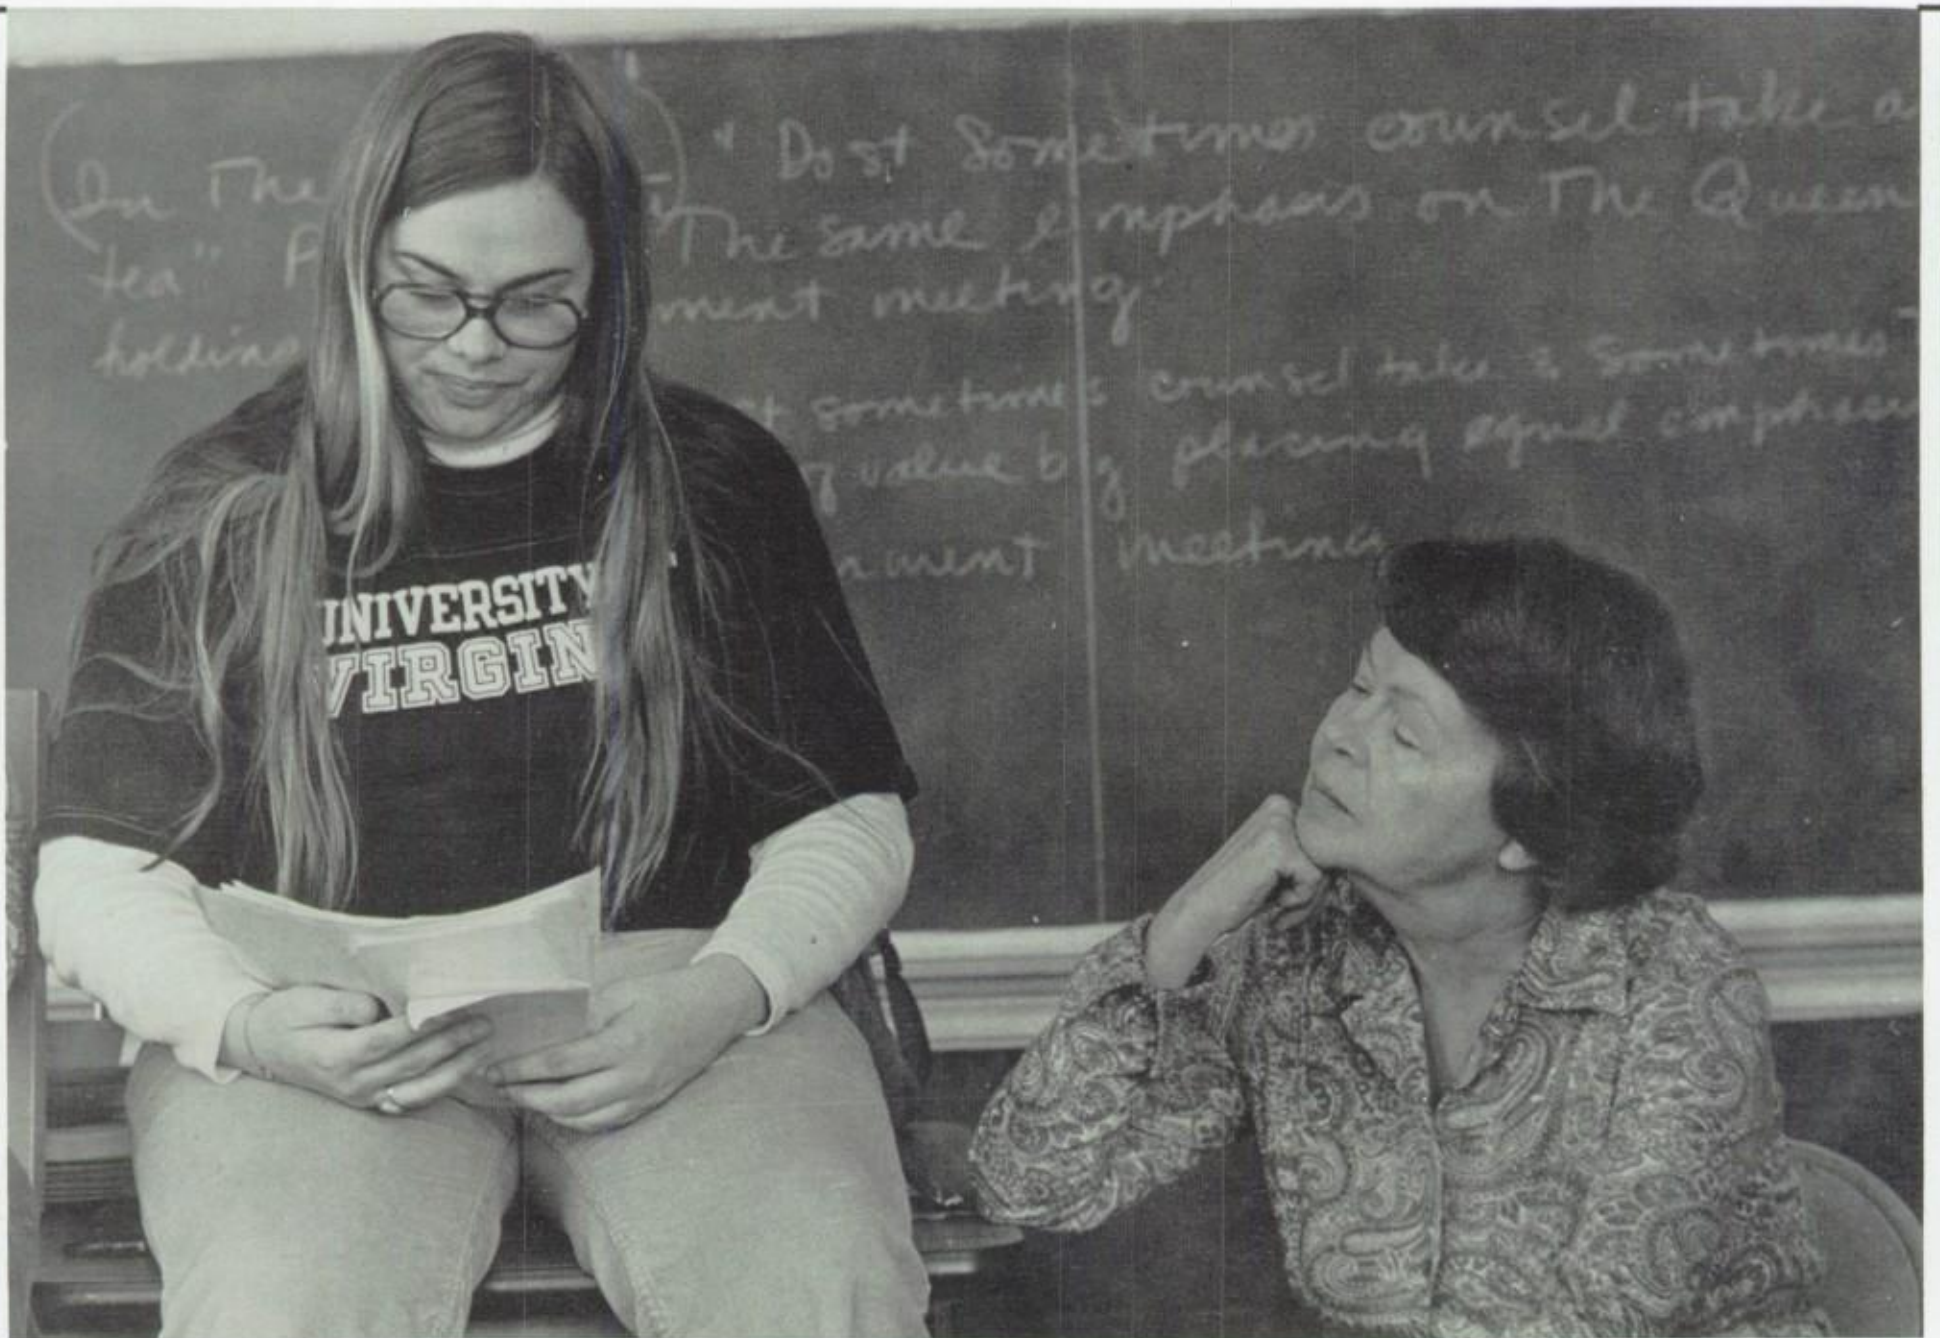

Diane Peterson and Sophia Phass read a humorous story.

The Shearings

Extra, Extra, Read All About It

Editor Marilyn Sohl and the Shearings staff worked arduously to keep the student body informed. Shearings reporters tackled an assortment of topics ranging from international politics to events at S.A.S., S.S.S., and E.H.S.

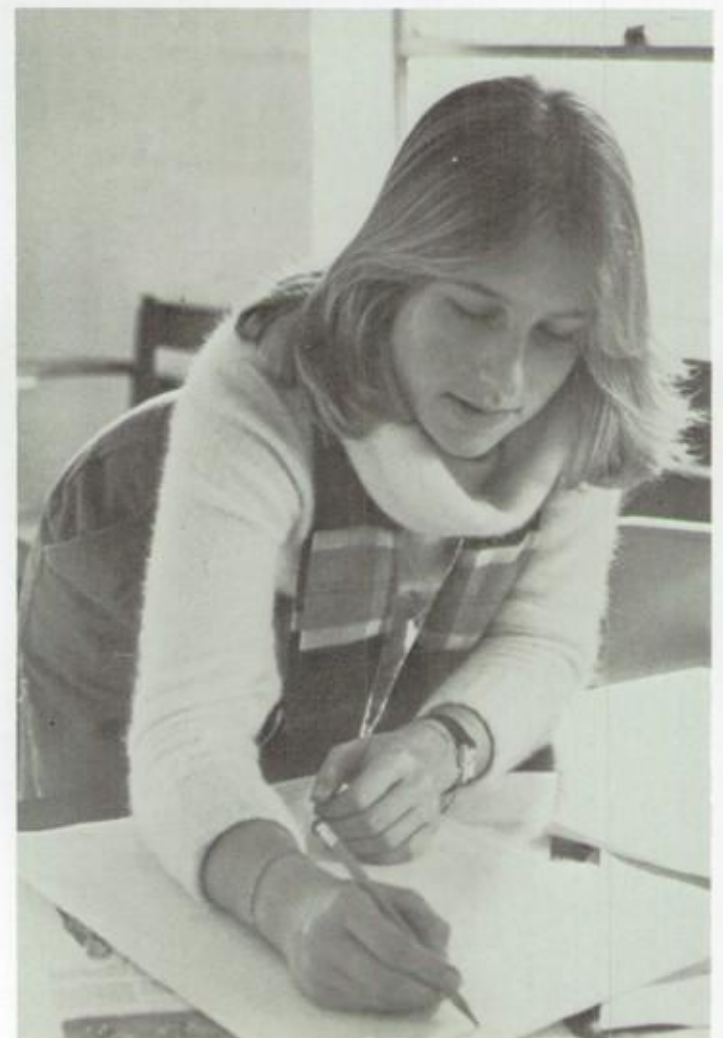

Movie critic Amy Krimm reviewed current flicks and recommended some as alternatives to the usual weekend activities. "Controversy Corner" presented pro and con arguments to debatable issues. Concert information, sports schedules, the gossip column, and the news on student achievements have all been an integral part of Shearings.

Katy Condon seems to be running short of the patience for getting advertisements.

Amard-Encore Lights Up Center Stage

Make-up woman Sasha Opel adds yet another layer of pancake to Hilary Austin's face to prepare her for the harsh lights of the stage.

Hilary Austin keeps the heat off during the play.

Stage Crew head Margaret Jones uses her professional know how and a "bic" pen to open a can of paint.

The house lights dimmed, the curtains were drawn, and St. Agnes' own theater group, Amard, and St. Stephens' Encore began their performance. Out of the confusion of late evening rehearsals, hasty memorizations, and last minute preparations, the troupe carried off two successful seasonal productions. The Fall show, Story Theater, was a parody of Aesop's Fables and Grimm's Fairy Tales. The Spring show, done in dinner theater style, was a revue called Be the First Person on Your Block To Be Nostalgic about the '70's.

The driving forces behind Amard's success included Tracy Jordan, president; Sasha Opel, treasurer; and Ms. Kidder, sponsor, under whose deft direction the entire production came together.

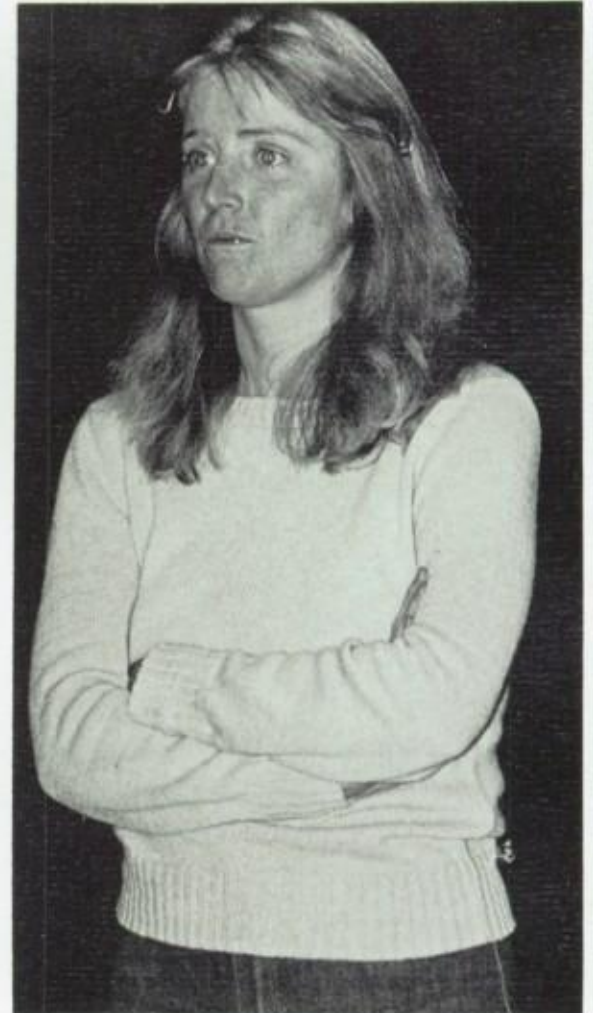

They might not be ready for the National Theater, but is the National Theater ready for Amard?

Making Melodies

As in the yearly tradition, Sextette, a student-organized singing group composed of six members and two alternates, gave talented performances both in and out of school. Sextette sang at St. Stephen's Homecoming dance, Holiday Club, Fun Night, and Amard's spring play. The group also gave well-received performances at the Carol Service, at a special assembly, and to the kids at Head Start.

Almost any second half of lunch, the girls can be found in rooms A and Z practicing their complicated harmonies. The results of their hard work are the well-rehearsed, energetically-performed songs that we all love to hear.

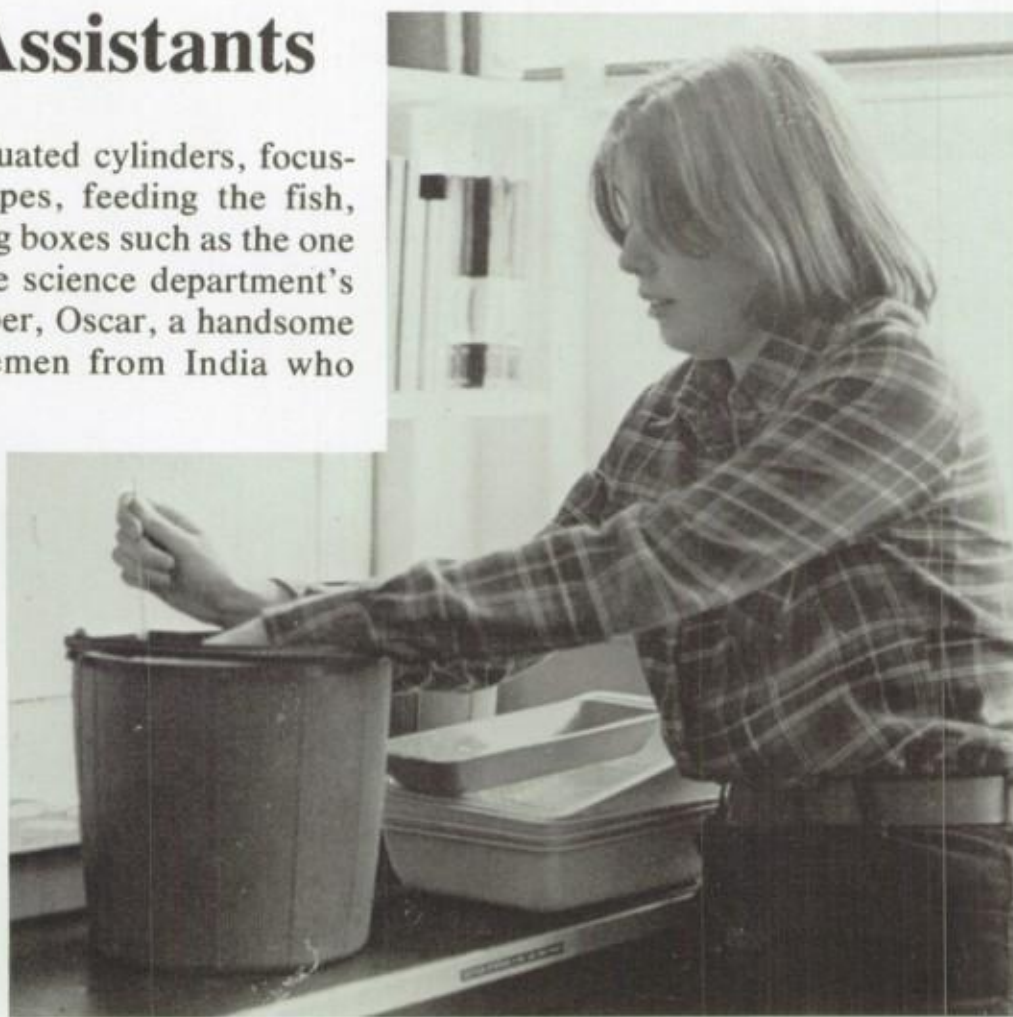

Dagger Happy Lab Assistants

The lab assistants, a dedicated group of students who gave their time to assist in the laboratory, provided the service the science instructors needed before and during the lab periods. Their various and intriguing duties included mixing chemicals, washing graduated cylinders, focusing microscopes, feeding the fish, and unpacking boxes such as the one containing the science department's newest member, Oscar, a handsome young gentleman from India who likes to fast.

Kim Kaiser performs one of the nicest duties of a lab assistant — washing test tubes.

Knights Sharpen Skills For Oncoming Matches

Every Wednesday the knights of the Chess Club assembled in order to improve their skills in chess. Queen of the club, Virginia Coomber, said that her knights had advanced in their mastery of the game. This assertion was verified when the club played well in a light skirmish with Ascension Academy. Though the knights of the Chess Club are a relatively new feature at S.A.S., the school's interest in them grows.

Llewellyn Rowe and Kate Jones concentrate on the game.

A Playday Without A.A. Is Just a Day

An integral part of St. Agnes' Sports Department is the Athletic Association which organizes and provides food and recently S.A.S. pennants for Hockey, Basketball, and Spring Playdays.

In May, A.A. collaborated with the Fathers' Association to sponsor the Athletic Awards Banquet where participants listened to a speaker and honored outstanding players.

Rubb a dubb dubb — four boarders in a tub: How about knocking next time? Ms. B, Jill, Kim and Scuz.

Looks like the phone will be busy for another hour.

Kim Kaiser hurriedly gulps down her morning meal in order to get to school on time.

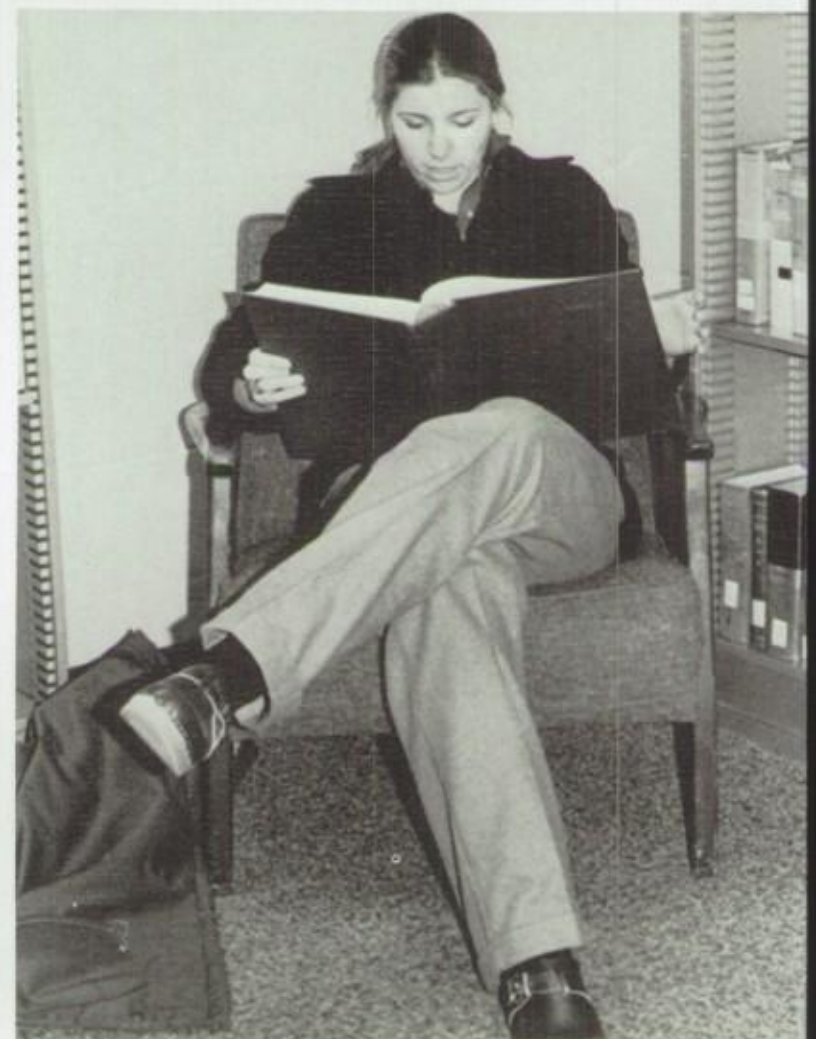

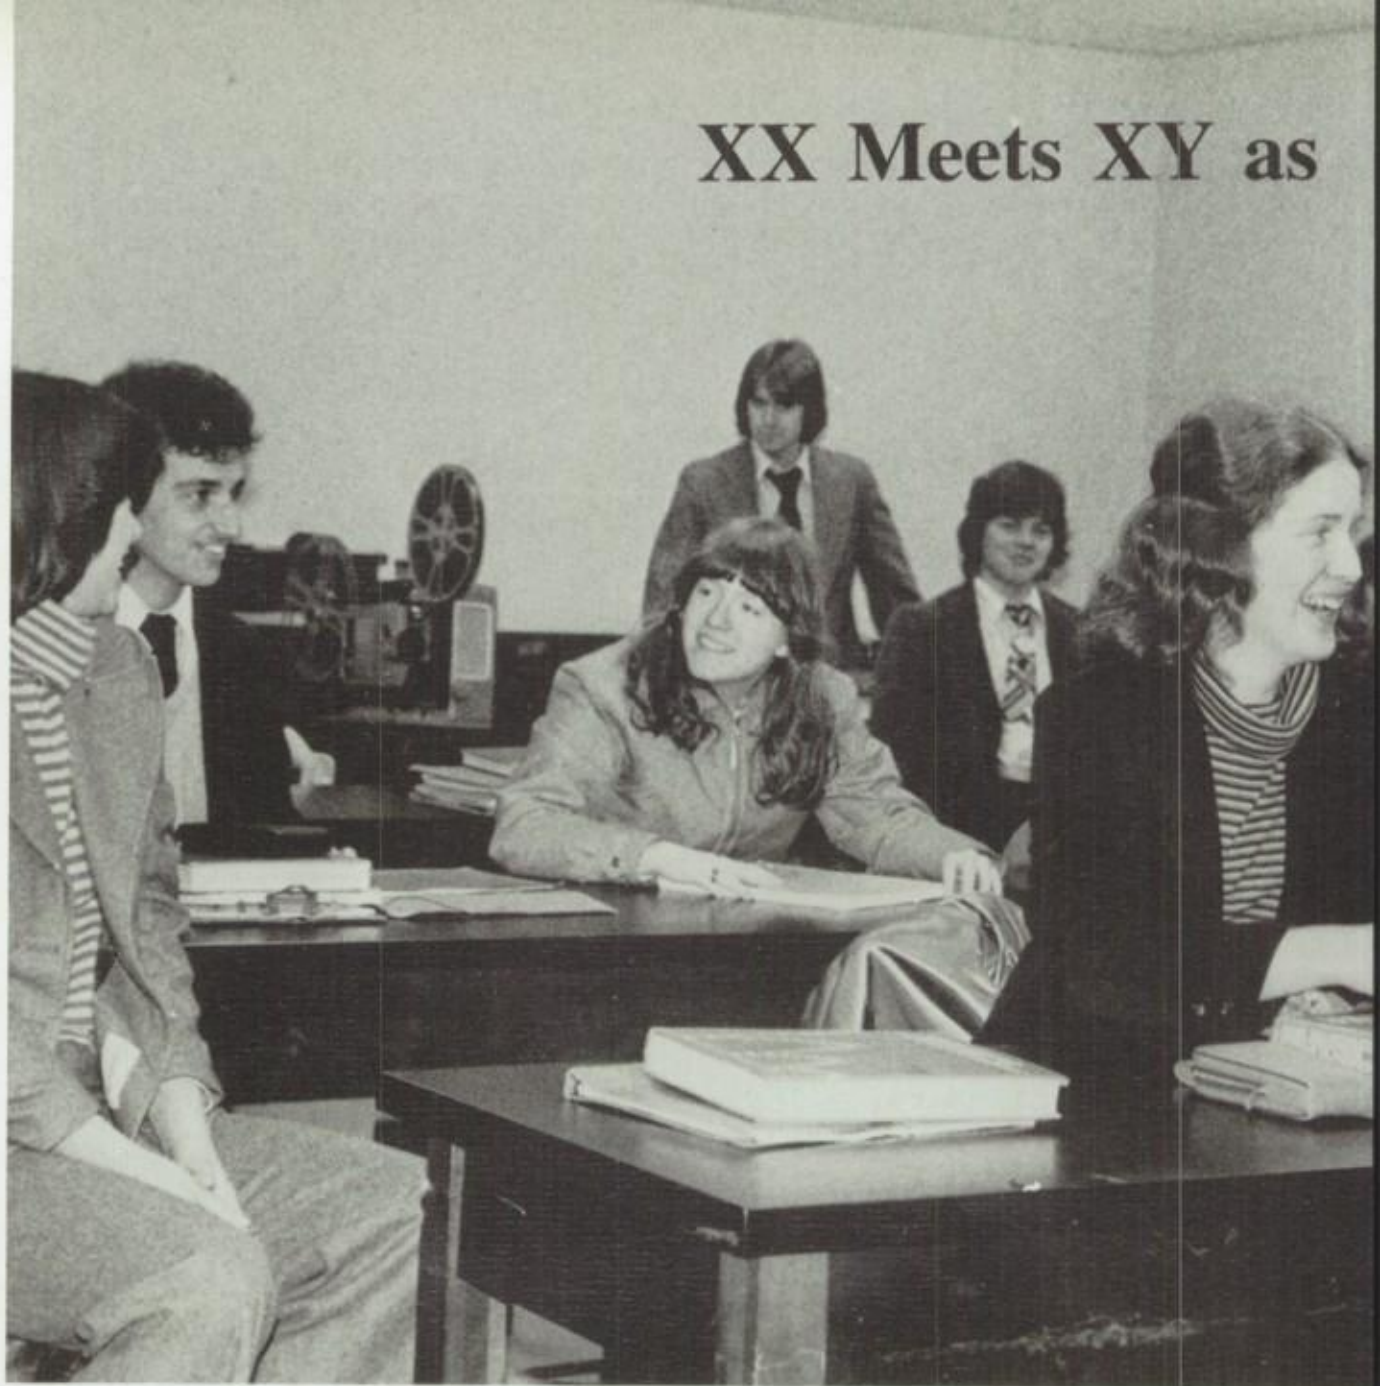

Bye- Bye B.D.

"You live where?" is one question often asked a group of four SAS'ers. Director Miss B. with "Johann the cah," Seniors Jillie "on the phone again," and Kim-o in the midst of one of her "spaz attacks," and Junior Scuzzie struggling through "torture hour" are the few but close members of the St. Agnes Boarding Department in its last year of existence. When they leave, the boarders will take many fond memories with them: "ice skating in the bathtub," "after dinner strolls," and "midnight raids" . . . "Bye-bye B.D!"

XX Meets XY as

The not-so-hallowed hall of St. Stephens were once again invaded by St. Agnes students, but there were fewer co-eds this year because Chemistry was offered at S.A.S. The typical day of these select few was not run of the mill. The co-eds had to rush from school at a precise time, drive through an obstacle course of squirrels, try to find a parking place in the crowded S.S.S. lot, and still arrive in time for classes of Physics, Calculus, French, or Government. The girls also had to put up with the initial stares and feelings of dislocation, but by the end of the year, traveling to S.S.S. had become routine.

All work and no play make . . . but here the SSS coeds seem to be having anything but a dull time!

SSS Coeds: Heather Kenvin, Anne Perry, Carroll Dodson, Cathy Gahres, Barbara Durham. Missing: Lydia Richardson.

SAS Meets SSS

The hallowed halls of St. Agnes were broken up this year by an unruly band of troublemakers who called themselves co-eds. It was with the excuse of attending such newly-formed classes as Psychology, Speech, and Drama that these academically-minded young men caroused and cavorted with the girls of SAS. Most infamous were the students of Ms. Kidder's speech class, Chris Buck, Ken Krahulec, Todd Ruback, and George Bell. In the spirit of higher education they interrupted classes, created disturbances, made lascivious propositions, and generally broke up the monotony. If ever there were an ounce of inhibition among them, it certainly never showed.

Kilts in Action

Having lost only a few key players the previous year, the 1978 hockey team was prepared for victory as it began the season. Coaches Mrs. Callahan, Mrs. Fellows and Miss Baranofsky willingly gave their time to coordinate the various talents and efforts of the girls in order to produce a successful team. The players did their best, beginning the season with a victory for both the varsity and junior varsity teams and ending the season with a record of three wins, three losses, and three ties for the varsity, and three wins and three losses for the j.v. Though the record may not seem outstanding, the team members performed remarkably well, and grew more adept as the season progressed.

The 1978 Volleyball Team had its most exceptional season ever. For the first time, the season began in the fall, thus placing the team in a harder league.

To win several close games, the players relied on experience and strategy developed in the many practices. The team also benefited from some new equipment. Their spirit and skill led the Varsity to finish the year with an outstanding record of seven wins and two losses, while the Junior Varsity ended the year undefeated — CONGRATULATIONS!

The Gold Team Wins the Points But

What day is full of hockey sticks, doughnuts and hot chocolate, green and gold shirts? Hockey Day! Because of a rain-drenched field, Hockey Day was postponed until a cold, cloudy November 22, the day before Thanksgiving vacation. Many students missed the battle of the hockey sticks to leave for vacations, but many others stayed at school to see whether the green knights would slay the gold dragons or whether the Gold Team would "go for it" and beat the Green Team. As their little team won with a score of 2-0, the Green's hopes were high, but many were their frowns as the Golds won the middle and big games, both by the score of 1-0. The Green Team would have to wait for the next battle, Basketball Day, to catch up in the war for the banner.

Shooting Stars

The players' dedication and general improvement resulted in a winning season for the S.A.S. basketball team. Suicide drill, technique and strategy talks, the leadership of co-captains Leslie Keleher and Mindy Strawson, as well as an increase in moral from new uniforms and an electric scoreboard contributed to each victory.

Aside from promoting school spirit in the usual manner of cheering at football, hockey, and basketball games, the St. Agnes and St. Stephens' cheerleaders hung posters to advertise games, decorated buses and players' lockers, and made goodies for the various teams.

In order to create closer friendships among themselves, the Rah-Rahs met for pre-game meals; Tory Bucur, the captain, even arranged a cheerleading summer camp, held in July, where the cheerleaders developed new cheers and revised old cheers by adding pom poms and different steps.

“Tis the Season to be Jolly”

Another Christmas vacation commenced following the traditional end-of-December festivities: the Lower School and Upper School Carol Services, the Lambs' Tale Bazaar, and the Seniors' version of “The Night Before Christmas.”

The yearly signal for Christmas at St. Agnes has always been the two Carol Services. The Lower School's service included a play, “The First Silent Night” told from the viewpoint of a mouse, was accompanied by an angelic cotta clad choir. The Upper School Carol Service followed the traditional form with Christmas Songs sung in German, French, Spanish as well as in English.

Other signs of the upcoming, long-awaited vacation were the Junior Class reindeer, the tinsel tree in the front hall, the even more-tinsel students, and the Lambs' Tale Bazaar which was a great success! Money was raised by selling goodies to eat, wear and hang up.

The Night Before Christmas, the annual Senior Skit, while following the original story verbatim, was enlivened as only the Class of '79 could do it! The Seniors gave the Juniors their gift-wrapped class rings, making it all the merrier!

Thus vacation commenced. Shouts of glee and good cheer accompanied parties, gift-giving and the slamming of locker doors as S.A.S. left for the Holidays!

To Sleep or To Listen That is the Question

Laden down with books, bags, gossip, and gum, St. Agnes students dutifully made their way to the gym for their tri-weekly gatherings. They were informed by health and charity organizations, dazzled by the "Tulanians," a singing group from Tulane University, and entertained by Outing Club's "home movies."

Thursday chapels provided students with a restful, contemplative moment in their busy schedules, while announcements of club meetings, upcoming dances, and sports events added interest, amusements, and experience to their ever-so-active lives.

Rain or Shine, They Dance and Dine

On January 20, Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors braved inclement weather to bop to the beat of "Menagerie." The girls, having been wined and dined beforehand, jived all night long on the dance floor.

The sweet tones of Sextette provided a soothing break for the dancers, while the announcement of the court brought back the excitement with which the dance had originated.

Although the dance ended at one o'clock, the celebrating continued throughout the wee hours of the morning as many couples attended breakfasts and post-breakfast parties. These get-togethers, along with the dance itself, provided a smashing finale to exam week.

The Freshman Class stole the show by placing first with its rendition of the Dating Game, "The Dame Game." Mr. Nemetz starred as the "bachelor," and Kelly Engh won best actress as the favored "bachelorette." The Sophomores entertained the audience with their "men from outer space," and the Juniors grabbed second place with their Dancing Teeth. The Seniors brought the class skits to an end with their "Tenth Year Reunion" in the Laugh-In style, and had a ball.

Continuing tradition, the faculty evoked the most laughter of the evening by dressing in Togas, and by doing humorous skits about Isaac Newton and "The Creation!"

Rings-n-Things

On October 29, the Junior and Senior classes gathered at St. Agnes for the long awaited Junior-Senior Day. The blindfolded Juniors, through all of their trials and tribulations, afforded unlimited amusement for the Seniors. This year was the first in many that the Senior class broke with the tradition of the infamous "kangaroo court;" instead, a few had their Juniors give impromptu speeches on topics suitable to their personalities. Both classes enjoyed the opportunity to grow closer. From that day on, the Juniors became increasingly anxious about the presentation of their rings, until Christmas which came early for the Juniors. During Carol Service practice, the Juniors, with visions of class rings dancing in their heads, made known their wishes by singing their own version of the "The Twelve Days of Christmas." The echo of "42 class rings" sounded later, but this time, from the golden throats of the Seniors who presented the rings as a part of their skit, The Night Before Christmas. Anticipating ring turn number 80, contented Juniors were full of holiday spirit as they left for vacation.

The juniors haven't the sense to realize that it's hard to look for someone's contact with a blindfold on.

They Had Their Cake and Ate It Too

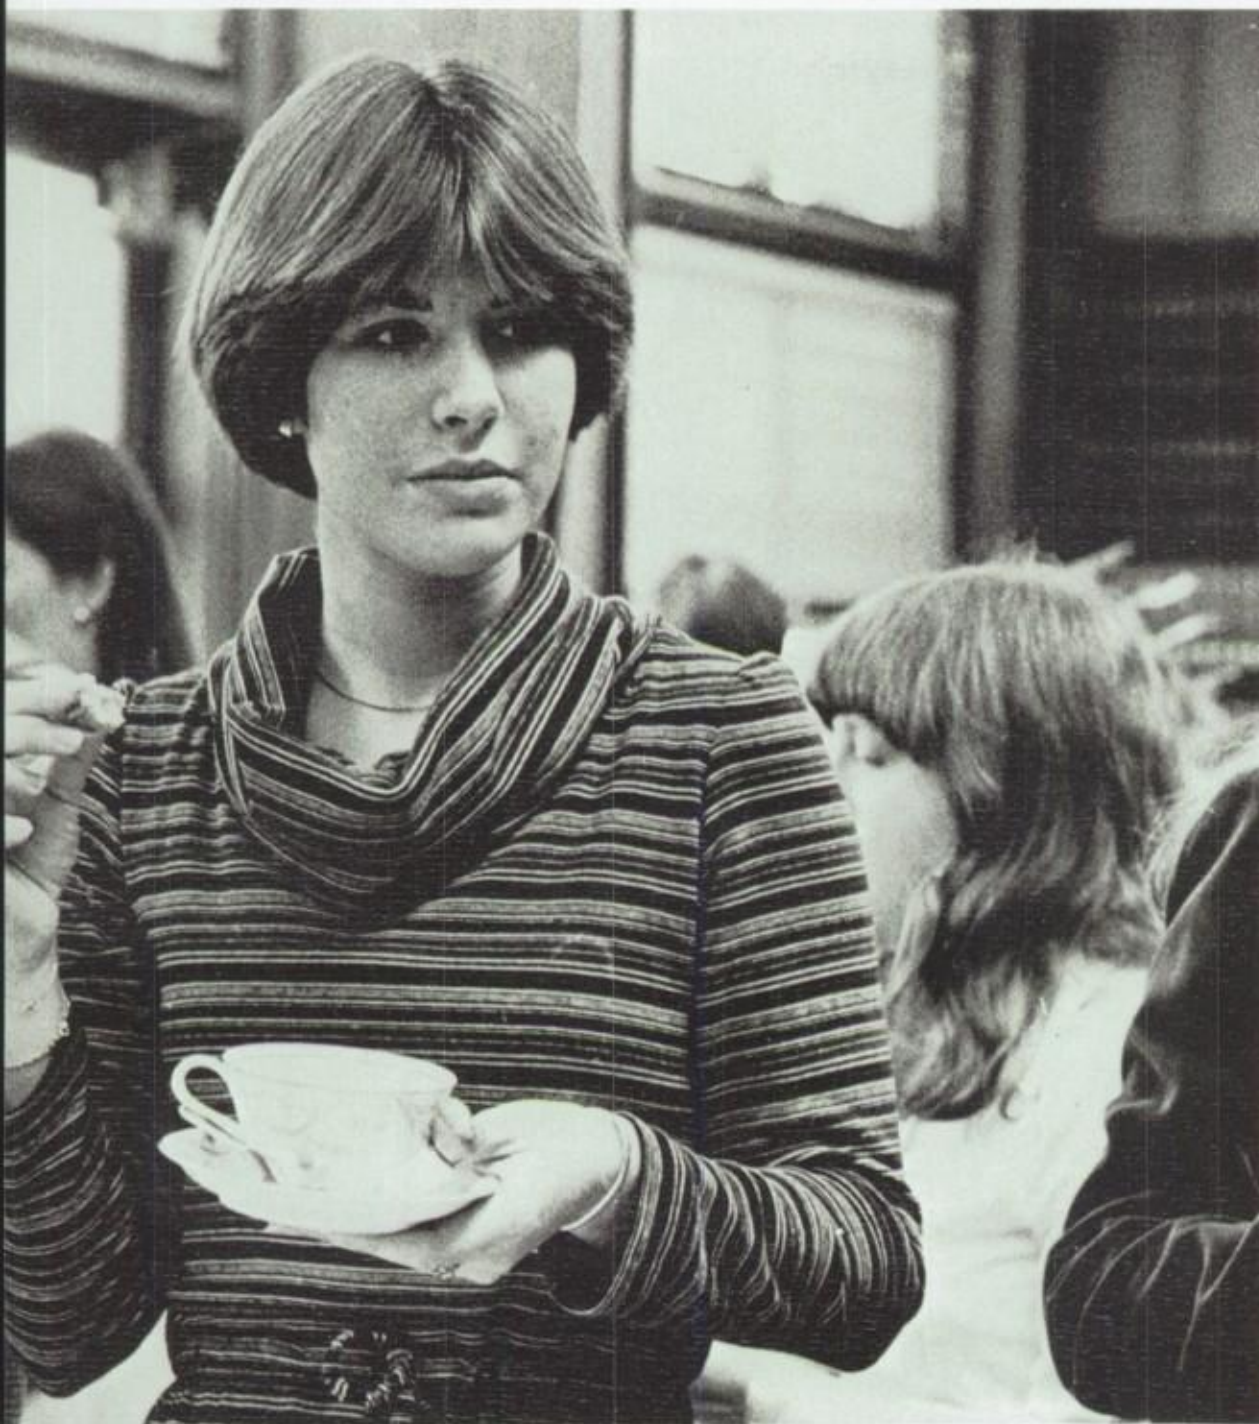

St. Agnes Day was a mixture of the old and the new. The Seniors decided to keep the tradition of choosing five girls, but they each represented all the qualities of loyalty, integrity, compassion, intellectual endeavor, and self reliance/ perseverance/ steadfastness. During the candlelight service, these five girls presented their feelings about St. Agnes. The special chapel program ended with the giving of gifts from classes and clubs, but the Seniors continued celebrating during a reception in the library. For the rest of the school, their own celebrations picked up again during lunch when each class had cake and ice cream.

The Seniors can hardly wait to rip open their envelopes containing the Shearings and, the names of the St. Agnes Day Court.

Seniors pass the flame in the tradition of St. Agnes Day.

Marcy Craig takes a moment to enjoy her tea and pastry at the reception following the St. Agnes Day service.

Melanie Steen, as Mistress of Ceremonies, reads off the gifts from classes and organizations.

Anticipating their speeches, Judy Newman, Heather Kenvin, Muffet Wright, Marilyn Sohl and Patty Rhyne patiently await their turns.

As Virginia's oldest savings and loan association, we've put a lot of people first over 111 years! Since 1868, we've seen America's gross national product swell from comparatively few British pounds to a trillion U.S. dollars.

And we've grown into a major money center in northern Virginia, a vital factor in the area's growth. Our progress has never been at the expense of our integrity, dependability, and traditional courtesy.

First Commonwealth has never confused size with excellence.

Now that we have passed through the campus of St. Agnes, we may look back at all those times we have shared, both trying and fun. Rarely during the year did we pause long enough to think; instead we rushed right through, and now the year is over.

Stop and take a breath; let your mind rest. We may now relive these memories from the day we entered, until the day we left. We will always be welcomed back at St. Agnes; our support, our participation will continue always.

You never leave a place you love
Part of it you take with you
Leaving a part of you behind.

This Lambs' Tale could not have been told without the generous help of special friends — the Senior Class, Mr. Bailey, Mrs. Babcock, Mr. and Mrs. Keith, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Ashton, Mr. Montgomery, Mrs. Prentice, Mrs. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Jones, Chris, Louie Beth, Melanie, the P.T.O., the staff and their more than understanding parents.

Many thanks!
Muffet

To La,

Way back here where nobody looks I'll sign my name in your big year book. Dear LAP,

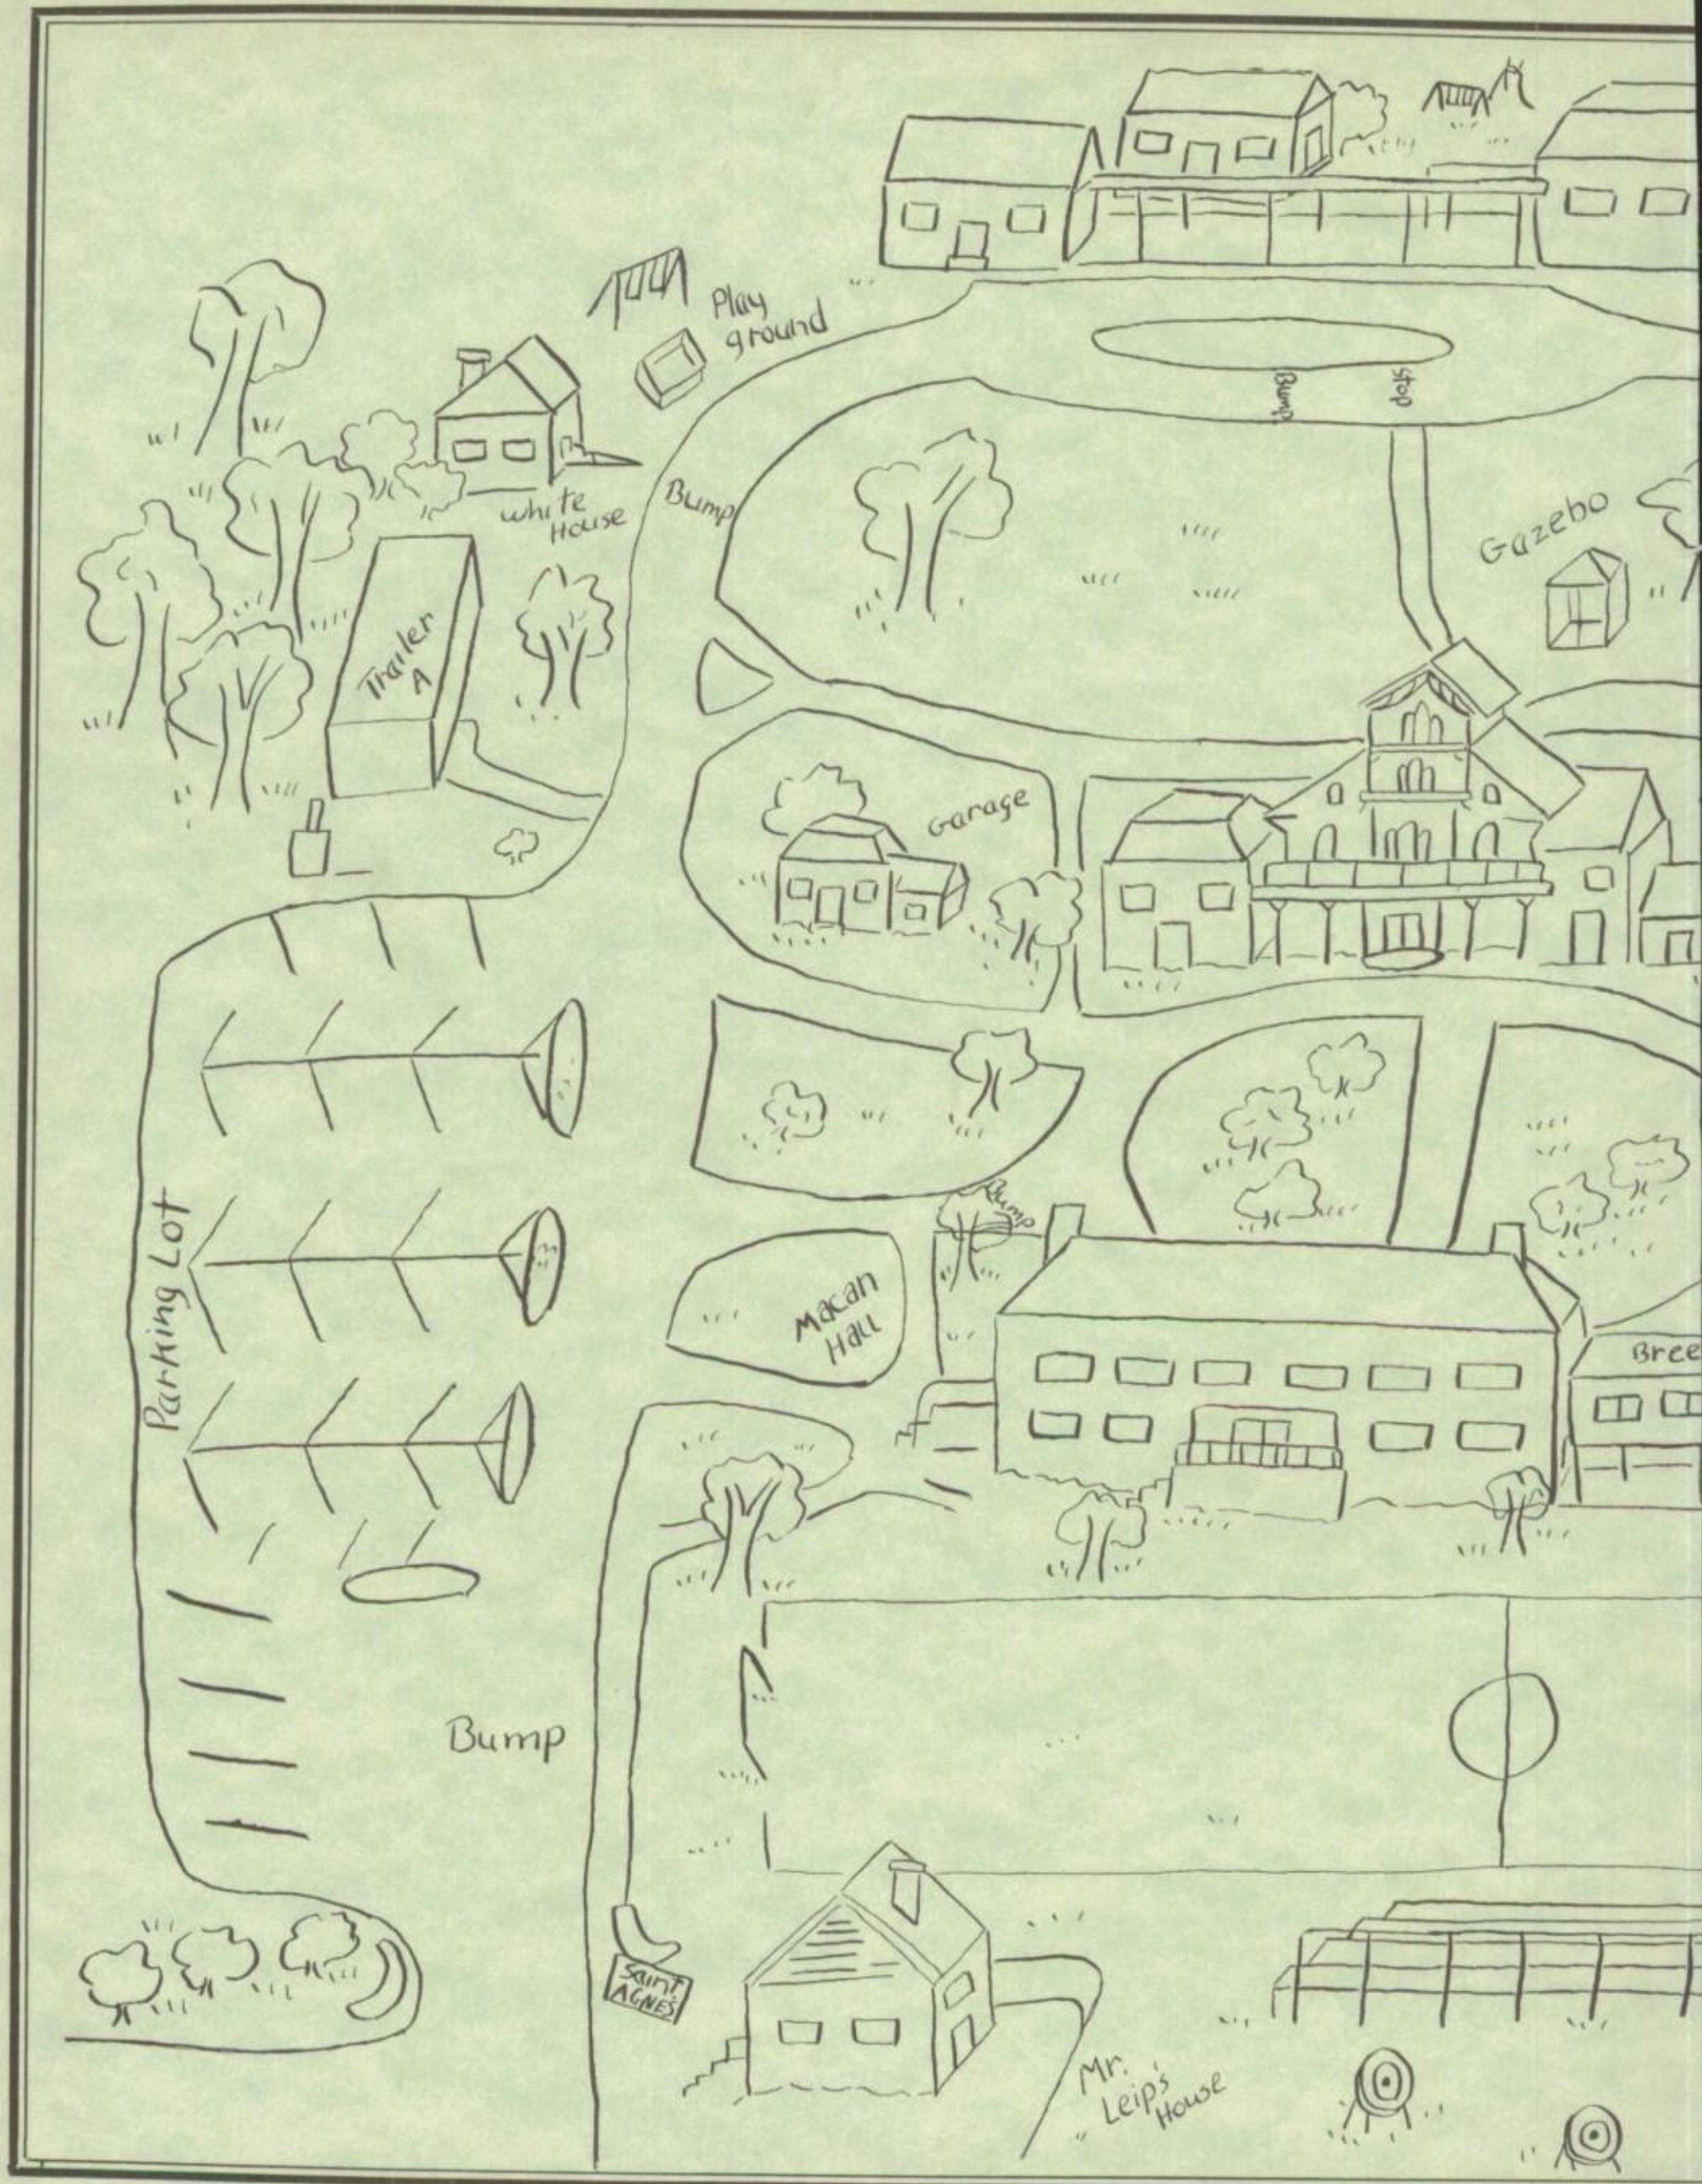

I will see you tuesday morning so I wont miss you much! And I'll also see you the 16th. So I wont miss you at all! Ha Ha!

Love, (just kidding)

6-8-79

Mary Magland

ps. my b-day is in 3 day and I'll be 14.
See ya!
